Carter expected to sign 'simplified' new tax bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tax bill that began as the centerpiece of President Carter's economic stimulus program is returning to the White House for final consideration. The President's signature would mean a new permanent tax cut for 46 million couples or individuals.

Those who get the tax cuts should see the changes in paychecks received after June 1.

Congress completed action on the bill Monday. The Senate passed it by voice vote without objection following a 383-2 vote in the House.

Although the bill contains business tax breaks that the Carter administration says are not needed, congressional leaders say they have no doubt that the President will sign it.

The major new tax cut in the bill would benefit only the 69 per cent of taxpayers who do not itemize deductions.

In all, American individuals and businesses would pay $34.1 billion less in taxes over the next 28 months.

In addition to raising the standard deduction to $3,200 for couples filing a joint return and $2,200 for single persons, the bill would greatly simplify tax returns for 95 per cent of the individual filers. In most cases, a taxpayer could figure his taxes simply by looking at a tax table and without computing any percentages or using multiplication.

The Internal Revenue Service says the more-generous standard deduction will make it more beneficial to 6.7 million couples or individuals to stop itemizing deductions. The changes will eliminate tax liability above that withheld for 3.3 million returns.

One section of the bill affects almost every taxpayer. It extends for one year, through Dec. 31, 1978, the general $35-per-person tax credit (or 2 per cent of the first $9,000 of taxable income); continues the special credit of up to $400 a year for poor working families, and lowers tax rates for corporations.

Also included are special onetime tax breaks for sick-pay recipients, elderly persons and Americans who worked abroad in 1976. These temporary changes are designed to delay for one year the effective date of some parts of the big tax law package passed last year.

Missing is the major element contained in the bill when it was proposed by Carter in an effort to spur the sluggish economy. Carter had wanted $50 rebate checks mailed to about 200 million Americans in an effort to boost consumer spending and the economy.

Opposition to that plan was quick in coming. Republicans wanted a big permanent tax cut instead. Democrats wondered about the effectiveness of the rebate idea. In the end, it was Carter himself who junked the plan, announcing last month that the economy had improved to the extent that no further tax stimulus was needed.

Carter asked Congress at the same time to drop any proposed new tax help for business. But the Senate insisted, the House gave in, and the measure now carries a new incentive for businesses to cut into unemployment. Within limits, the government would pay $2,100 of the wages of each new worker hired this year and next.

In addition, there is a onetime tax break of $30 million for the independent oil drillers who are credited with most of the new oil finds in this country. This provision delays implementation of a 1976 change that subjects certain drilling expenses to a minimum tax.

One effect of the change in the standard deduction is to lessen the "marriage penalty," which Carter has referred to as an incentive for "living in sin."

Present law allows a person who does not itemize deductions to escape taxation on 16 per cent of his taxable income, but not less than $1,700 and not more than $2,400. For a couple filing a joint return, the figures are $2,100 and $2,800. Thus, two single persons living together qualify for two standard deductions totaling up to $4,800 (two times $2,400); if they are married and filed a joint return, they could get a deduction no greater than $2,800.

That "marriage penalty" is $2,000, and at a 25-per-cent tax bracket that would mean $500 more a year in taxes.

Under the bill, the two single persons could get deductions totaling $4,400; as a couple, they could get $3,200. The marriage penalty would be cut to $1,200, which would mean a tax saving of $200 a year for persons in a 25-per-cent tax bracket.

Decision made over attached strings; city could lose millions

By ED PRATHER
PB Staff Writer

Pomona City Council threw millions of dollars in the federal government's face Monday night by rejecting a housing assistance program for low income residents of the city.

Rejection of the assistance program, in the form of rental subsidization, will cost the city $1.4 million it would have received this year under the federal Community Development Block Grant program, and perhaps as much as $5.6 million over the next four years.

Loss of those funds sinks plans for a senior citizens' center, a beautification program, improved street lighting and a variety of other previously heralded projects.

Mayor Charles Bader and Councilmen Adrian Wright and G. Stanton Selby cast the three votes against the rental assistance plan, although none of the three offered any specific information critical of the federal aid to low income renters.

Bader called the decision a "matter of philosophy."

In considering the issue, which Bader called his "toughest in six years," the council was confronted with two federal programs — one it wants and one it does not.

The one it wants is the Block Grant program, under which the city expected to receive $1.4 million each of the next four years.

Unfortunately for the council, that program is tied to the Section 8 housing assistance program, which the council majority finds philosophically unacceptable.

"You can't have one without the other," said Bader in quoting the words of federal officials he has talked with concerning the matter.

Bader, Wright and Selby based their rejection of the program on the belief that the program would draw new, poor residents to the community to take advantage of it.

Officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) contended that more than 2,600 Pomona households were in need of the rental assistance, and that the city should allow from 5 to 10 per cent of those to participate in the Section 8 program this year — assuming they could qualify and obtain the approval of individual landlords.

City Administrator Jerrold Gonce proposed that the city allow 200 "units" this year under the program.

Even that number, halfway between the 5 to 10 per cent recommended by federal officials, was discomforting to the council majority, however.

"We should change the image of Pomona as a place to receive welfare," said Bader.

Only Councilman Benjamin Ochoa supported the rental subsidization program in order to receive the other grant funds, pointing out that many cities in the area are going along with program and have not reported the kinds of problems feared by his colleagues.

"If your stomach is full you don't care so much about the next guy," said Ochoa.

Ochoa dismissed Wright's repeated argument about raising Social Security payments as unrealistic.

"You can talk all you want to about raising Social Security, but it's not going to happen. You have to face the facts," said Ochoa.

Although it wasn't reflected in the vote, Ochoa's position had some moral support from the Rev. Harold Thain of the First Assembly of God Church, who lead a delegation of about 20 senior citizens to the meeting in support of the Section 8 program.

Although they stood to show their support for the program, they also applauded some of the "philosophical" reservations noted by council members in arguing against the assistance plan.

Bader, Wright and Selby all avowed they would support a Section 8 program for senior citizens only, or if they could insure that only Pomona residents would qualify in Pomona.

Lacking those alternatives however, the three council members said they could not support the program.

Several individual speakers from the audience called for rejections of the subsidy plan.

Carter details domestic goals in L.A. speech

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Carter today promised to battle successfully against high unemployment and high inflation, pledging to take whatever steps might be needed "if the recovery should falter during the years ahead."

Carter detailed his domestic policy goals in an address prepared for the annual convention of the United Auto Workers union, which has been critical of the President's recommended taxes-and-rebate plan to persuade Americans to buy energy-efficient automobiles.

"You and I have honest differences of opinion over some aspects of my proposals," he said, but added that these differences did not cause him to "hesitate to ask for your help."

Arguing that "more efficient automobiles with a clean exhaust" are inevitable, Carter noted imported vehicles in the January-March quarter claimed a larger share of the American market than ever before.

"I can think of no more disastrous assumption for the American automobile industry than that we cannot successfully compete with foreign companies that produce and sell such cars," he said.

Carter also restated, for the first time in recent weeks, his commitment "to the phasing in of a workable national health insurance system."

Freak copter accident kills 5

NEW YORK (AP) — The heliport atop the Pan American building was turned into a "gory mess" when an idling helicopter keeled over and sent its whirling blades slashing through passengers and onto the sidewalk 59 stories below.

Five persons were killed in the accident Monday, including a woman who was hit by falling debris a block away from the skyscraper that straddles Grand Central Terminal in midtown Manhattan. At least eight others were injured.

Three waiting passengers were literally cut to pieces as the blades hit the landing pad and spun off. A fourth man on the roof also died of injuries.

Immediately after the tragedy, helicopter service from the Pan Am pad to nearby airports was suspended indefinitely. The flights resumed earlier this year after being stopped nine years ago for various reasons, including fear of danger. Until Monday, however, there had been no major accidents.

The National Transportation Safety Board began investigating the accident today. Brad Dunbar, a spokesman for the investigative team, said the "immediate problem is how much it (the helicopter) has to be moved so we can do our initial investigative work."

"This is certainly the first time we've had to deal with an aircraft that is on top of an office building," Dunbar added.

Edward Dreifus, the investigator in charge, said it was unclear how long the investigation would take or when or how the wreckage of the helicopter would be removed.

One blade sailed over the Biltmore Hotel to land on Madison Avenue, striking Anne Barnecott, 29, of the Bronx in the rush hour pedestrian traffic. She died instantly.

Another blade boomeranged into a window of the Pan Am building, but no one was injured.

Miami blackout underlines dependence on electricity

MIAMI (AP) — Buzzing dental drills fell silent. Elevators stopped between floors. Drawbridges gaped open, clogging major traffic arteries. People couldn't buy gasoline or even withdraw money from banks.

The blame for the chaos went to a faulty $50 relay switch that short-circuited on Monday and caused a blackout affecting almost three million people over 15,000 square miles in south Florida.

No deaths or injuries were attributed to the outage, which lasted seven hours in some places.

A dentist in Miramar, southeast of Fort Lauderdale, said he was fixing a man's mouth plate when the power went off.

"I was just to the point of smoothing everything out," he said. "He's going to spend the day with a very rough mouth."

Carolyn Cutting, a hairdresser, said customers were sent home in rollers. "It's amazing how dependent we are on electricity," she said.

The sudden loss of power kicked on emergency generators — except at Miami Beach's Mt. Sinai Hospital. Surgeons there successfully finished an open-heart operation by flashlight.

The outage also stopped pumps at service stations, cooled off food at restaurants and stopped registers at banks.

"We can't pump gas, we can't work on cars. Even our tools are power," lamented Jay Tillman, owner of a Miramar service station, during the blackout. "I tried to get some lunch and can't even get a cup of coffee.

"I can't make a deposit at my bank. I went down there and everybody's just standing around because their machines are all electric."

The short circuit shut down a nuclear-fueled generator at Turkey Point south of Miami at 10:12 a.m. (EDT), said officials of the Florida Power & Light Co.

For a shaky 12 minutes, automatic devices allowed other generating units in the giant utility's network to absorb the loss.

But attempts to keep the juice flowing failed at 10:24 a.m. as major plants toppled. Operators manually shut down one nuclear unit because of wide fluctuations in voltage. That triggered the automatic shutdown of five oil-fueled generators.

In short order, FPL customers from Marathon in the Florida Keys up the coast to St. Lucie, just north of Fort Pierce, were without power. The outage stretched across the state to Naples on the Gulf Coast.

Some were without power until shortly before 5 p.m. Others, such as those in Naples, were out for about 10 minutes.

FPL, the state's largest power company, isolated the northern half of its system in order to maintain service in North and Central Florida.

"We were lucky it was a balmy, breezy day," said an FPL spokesman. "It helped cool off buildings and tempers. And it's a good thing it didn't happen at night."

Sen. Briggs will run for governor

State Senator John V. Briggs, R-Fullerton, has announced he will seek the Republican nomination for governor in 1978.

He made the announcement at press conferences in Sacramento, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Anaheim. Introducing him at each was former Lt. Gov. Ed. Reinecke. Also joining Briggs at the Sacramento conference were Republican Assembly Leader Paul Priolo and state Sen. Bill Campbell, R-Hacienda Heights.

Briggs said his strategy is aimed directly at the performance in contrast to the image of Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., whose high standing in political polls remains a matter of consternation to Republican leaders.

"It is my urgent message to the people that they look at the substance, not the form, of Jerry Brown. If this message is heeded, we can elect a Republican governor in 1978," Briggs stated.

While serving in the Assembly, Briggs had represented a portion of the West End of San Bernardino County.

Briggs struck at Brown for his opposition to a death penalty and support for early release of prisoners. To hide these actions, Briggs stated, Brown " . . . had his picture riding in a police car to symbolize his commitment to law and order."

Briggs also criticized Brown and his appointees for driving industry out of the state, and for supporting the defeated Farm Labor bill.

TENSION TIME

State lawmakers watch the tally board with apprehension in the Assembly Monday as a vote on a bill to restore the death penalty in California was being taken. The bill was approved on a 54-23 vote and returned to the Senate with amendments. From left are Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, the bill author, and Alister McAlister, D-San Jose, the lower house co-author.

Barely enough votes in Assembly

Death penalty bill passes

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Legislation restoring the death penalty is only one step away from Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.'s desk.

After a debate with religious overtones Monday, the Assembly voted 54-23 to send the bill back to the Senate for expected approval of amendments.

The Senate's vote, probably Thursday, will set the stage for the Democratic governor's promised veto and a veto override fight.

The author, however, said he thought Brown could block it if he really wanted to. A Brown aide disputed that.

Sen. George Deukmejian, RLong Beach, sponsored the bill which won only the exact number of "yes" votes needed for measures drafted to take effect immediately.

"Our role is clear — to reinstate a law that God gave at the beginning of time," said Assemblyman William Dannemeyer, R-Fullerton. "It was binding then and it's binding today."

After other supporters cited the Bible, a foe, Assemblyman Lawrence Kapiloff, D-San Diego, said he was equally religious but criticized "professional Jews and Christians," adding, "I hope your God forgives you, but personally I doubt it."

A two-thirds majority will be needed for an override. Deukmejian told reporters the outcome would be up to the governor.

"If he twists arms and exerts all the power and influence of his office, I think he can stop an override," said the Senate GOP leader.

Gray Davis, Brown's chief of staff, said in an interview that Deukmejian was overstating the governor's influence.

The bill was prompted by the second state Supreme Court decision in five years saying the death penalty law was unconstitutional.

It would impose the death penalty for treason and 15 categories of murder, including that of a police officer, of a witness, during rape or robbery, and multiple murder.

To meet the court decision, the bill would allow death to be reduced to life in prison on mitigating factors like age, past record, or emotional stress.

But Deukmejian wouldn't accept an amendment that opponents and some supporters said would improve the chances of constitutionality: a state Supreme Court review of each death sentence compared to other verdicts.

The amendment was rejected 29-44 after the bill's Assembly sponsor, Alister McAlister, DSan Jose, said the court could use it to "nullify every death penalty verdict in the state."

Yellow Cab prospects

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bankrupt Yellow Cab may have found new life because a 26-year-old cab driver and college student summoned enough bravado through a glass of wine to joke that he could rescue the firm.

Patrick Shannon's joke is nearing reality. Today he is close to putting the final touches on a cooperative venture that will put Yellow Cab back in business.

Shannon, who is studying Latin and ancient political philosphy at the University of California-Santa Cruz, was at a party last December when he called the head of the financially troubled firm and made a $5 million offer.

"It was a joke," he said. "I had had a glass of wine, and I never drink. But when I was talking to him, I suddenly realized how we could do it."

Shannon next called the news media and told them about a meeting of cab drivers at a local hotel — a meeting which hadn't been scheduled.

Four days later, however, Shannon had rented a room, notified out-of-work cabbies and a meeting was held.

Laetrile campaign OK'd

SAN DIEGO (AP)—A judge says four men convicted of smuggling Laetrile into the United States may continue their campaign to get the substance approved for cancer treatment, but must violate no laws.

The four Northern California men, including the president of the Committee for Freedom of Choice in Cancery Therapy, were given fines and probation Monday in connection with the smuggling charges.

U. S. District Court Judge William Enright rejected a recommendation by the federal probation department that the men be sentenced to prison, saying each already "paid a considerable price for his involvement in Laetrile."

Robert Bradford, president of the Los Altos-based committee, was given a $40,000 fine; Dr. John A. Richardson, who operates a clinic at Albany, Calif., was finded $20,000; his business manager, Ralph Bowman was fined $10,000, and the vice president of the committee, Frank Salaman, also was fined $10,000. All were given probation that will run three years.

Grillo will step down

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Municipal Court judge censured for alleged misuse of his judical powers has decided to step down for medical reasons.

Judge Joseph R. Grillo, who presided over the 64-judge court until he took sick leave Jan. 4, had been threatened with a probe of his judcial qualifications if he did not seek the medical disability retirement.

The 63-year-old Grillo, a diabetic, announced his decision Monday in a letter to his successor as Municipal Court presiding judge, Irwin J. Nebron.

Last August, Grillo held a county transportation official in contempt after the official refused to issue Grillo airline tickets so he could go to Sacramento to lobby for more judgeships. The County Bar Association censured Grillo for misconduct.

When Nebron became presiding judge, he threatened that if Grillo did not retire for medical reasons as his doctor suggested, Nebron would refer the matter to the state Commission on Judicial Qualifications. The commission has the power to ask the state Supreme Court to censure or remove a judge for misconduct or to retire a judge unable to handle his duties.

Claremont district gets new insurance

By DAN NIEBRUGGE
PB Staff Writer

After having had to operate the district without any comprehensive liability insurance from last Monday to last Thursday, the Claremont school board Monday authorized the expenditure of $109,000 to purchase $10 million worth of insurance for the coming year.

The expenditure and accompanying situation points out the growing uncertainty over comprehensive liability insurance for school districts in the state. Businesss Manager Charles Abbott told the board the $109,000 figure is up from the $60,977 the board spent last year on liability insurance.

Abbott told the board that the district had been informed by its former carrier, Canadian Indemnity, that it was leaving the school insurance field. He said that while most district policies ran through June 30, Claremont's expired May 9 before a new carrier could be found. From Monday until Thursday, with no liability insurance, the district was forced to curtail bus trips, driver education, shop and lab classes and gymnastics workouts; any of the more high risk areas in which injuries could occur.

Abbott said the district's insurance broker eventually contacted Allianze Insurance Co., a subsidiary of a German firm, which agreed to pick up the first $500,000 of the district's $10 million coverage for a $73,000 premium.

Further contacts brought the district its next $4.5 million of coverage from the Puritan Insurance Co. for an additional $25,000. The final $5 million of the package was picked up by Lloyds of London for $11,000.

Chaffey district raises graduation requirements

By JON MORRIS
PB Staff Writer

High school students in the Chaffey district will be required to take more courses to graduate, starting with this fall's freshman class.

School trustees Monday night — despite objections raised by board member Ray Sarrio — restored the 220-unit graduation requirement, which is 10 more than presently mandated.

The board also approved an added semester of social studies, bringing that requirement to 30 units. Trustees made no change in physical education requirements, despite an earlier suggestion from a district committee that students not be given P.E. credit by participating in athletics.

Trustees also approved a return to six-period school days for freshmen starting in the fall. Gradually, all students would be required to take six class periods.

The changes approved by the board had been recommended by Supt. Mike Dirksen, who estimated the cost of the new program to be $221,000 the first year. He figured it would require hiring about 16 new teachers to handle additional class periods.

Sarrio, who has advocated more basic, traditional courses, proposed that the graduation requirement be 230 units rather than 220. However, his motion failed on a 3-2 vote with Charles Uhalley casting the only supporting vote.

The board's vote was unanimous on Dirksen's recommendation.

Sarrio offered two alternatives to the superintendent's plan, both of which required students to take more courses. He also called for strengthening basic course requirements and lowering the number of electives from 110 to 45 units.

With 110 elective units, a student takes "easy courses," said Sarrio. "He is getting a narrow education by concentrating on certain fields."

Elizabeth Hicks, spokesman for the local chapter of California School Employes Association, said her child needs elective courses like interior decorating. "Parents should have a chance to put a child in whatever courses they want. I'd have lost my child if she was required to be in six classes a day. Some kids are not academically inclined."

One parent said Sarrio was not considering the artistically inclined student.

Uhalley agreed with Sarrio in protesting the 110 units of electives. "We're throwing out 110 units and saying to a kid, 'You take what you want.'"

Dirksen noted that by next year, the district will begin to specify basic course requirements. And in response to a question over the $221,000 cost of the changes, he said preliminary budget figures indicate the district will operate in the black next year.

Board chairman Adrian Chalfant noted trustees had to be "cautious" when they specify which courses students should take.

Another Big Foot sighting

Seven-feet tall, furry and, boy, did it smell

MISSION, British Columbia (AP) — It was seven feet tall, furry and lumbered across the highway, say the eyewitnesses. Exactly what it was no one can say, but the sighting rekindled visions of the legendary Sasquatch or Bigfoot.

The sighting on Sunday along Highway 7, 35 miles east of Vancouver, occurred as a Pacific Stage Lines bus driven by Pat Lindquist was westbound a mile east of Lake Erroch on the Harrison Hot Springs-toVancouver run.

The passengers and Lindquist caught, ahead of the bus, a glimpse of something they all described as a seven-foot tall beast of about 300 pounds with dark brown to black fur or hair and a light-colored face.

"At first we thought it was a prankster in a fur suit," said Lindquist, 28, a reserve Vancouver city policeman. "But people were shouting 'what is it, what is it', so I slammed on the brakes to have a look.

"To tell you the truth, I thought it was someone trying to con us so I took off after it. I guess I thought I was going to pull off his hat and bawl him out. I don't know why I did it. I'm not sure I really intended to catch up with it."

Royal Canadian Mounted Police described Lindquist as "very nervous and pale" when they arrived on the scene.

"The first thing I noticed was the smell," Lindquist said later. He called it "a horrible smell like very rotten meat. The bush was thick and I was pushing the branches apart when I saw it about 20 or 25 feet away. I just couldn't believe it.

"At first I was mad. But then I went to awe and then to fright and I began to shake. I couldn't stop shaking and then I got out of there."

The smell has been a common element in the reports from numerous people who claim to have been close to the Sasquatch, also known as Bigfoot.

Lindquist, who is 6-foot-2, said the thing before him was no more than seven feet tall, only "much heavier than I am."

"It had flat, flared nostrils like a monkey and large, wide eyes. It didn't make any sound except heavy breathing. It had a broad chest and it was heaving up and down.

"It could have taken two steps and grabbed me, but it didn't do anything. It didn't growl. It didn't show its teeth. It just looked at me."

Lindquist said the hair on its face was a light brown and "it appeared to have the mange; the skin underneath looked kind of white."

Police refused to release the names of the passengers or the driver, although Lindquist was located at the bus station in Vancouver. He at first refused to be photographed or give his name, out of fear no one would take him seriously.

RCMP Constable Robert Eyford said the passengers' descriptions were "consistent, they all saw the same thing." He said RCMP were taking the sighting "quite seriously."

Ray weapon 10 years away

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense scientists predict it will take at least 10 more years to produce a U.S. weapon that can burn into enemy missiles, satellites and warplanes with concentrated light beams.

They also indicated that an even more exotic "charged particle" beam weapon, a "death ray" that spews streams of tiny electronic pellets, is many years away in the indefinite future, for either the United States or the Soviet Union.

The United States is spending about $150 million this year on laser research and only about $7.5 million on the charged particle work, the scientists said.

The scientists discussed the two areas of advanced weapons research Monday at a briefing obviously intended to underscore the Carter administration's efforts to refute a published report that says the Soviets have scored a breakthrough in physics. A technical magazine article said this development might endanger the U.S. missile force.

President Carter and Defense Secretary Harold Brown already have said there is no evidence of such a breakthrough and their statements were echoed by the defense scientists.

The scientists did say, however, that the Russians also are pursuing what the scientists described as an active program to develop a high intensity laser, or light beam, weapon. But one of the U.S. scientists said: "It's tough to judge who is ahead."

The Defense Department scientists, who asked to remain anonymous, said the Soviets are carrying on a bigger effort than the United States to explore "charged particle" beam technology, but "we have no knowledge that there is any Soviet work specifically directed at charged particle weapons."

They said the U.S. effort does focus on possible weapons.

The scientists said the Soviet "state of the art" of charged particle beam technology is about equivalent to that of the United States.

Such technology, they noted, could have many applications other than weapons. Among other things, they mentioned energy transmission and welding.

The scientists also stressed that both the laser and charged particle programs are still in the exploratory stage and that many problems remain to be overcome before the research can be translated into weapons.

According to information provided to reporters, the evidence of Soviet research into charge particle beam technology has been reviewed by the Defense Science Board, the CIA and the Air Force Scientific Advisory Committee.

The result was that "there is no evidence of a breakthrough or that a weapon is imminent," one scentist said. However, he disclosed that the Air Force intelligence community had disagreed with the majority conclusion.

Israeli vote a tossup?

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli voters turned out in large numbers today in a general election that is expected to be the closest in the Jewish nation's history.

Three hours after polls opened at 7 a.m., 17 per cent of Israel's 2.2 million voters had cast ballots, the election committee said. First results were expected about 6 p.m. EDT with final results sometime Wednesday.

Election day here is a public holiday, and many voters moved on to beaches and picnic grounds to enjoy the first sunny day after a long cold spell. The 82-degree temperatures promised a heavy voter turnout.

Officials said almost all the 3,879 polling stations opened on schedule, and by midmorning the only incident reported was a small bomb which exploded in the occupied West Bank town of Nablus causing no casualties or damage.

The voters included city dwellers, kibbutz farmers, soldiers at remote front line bases, ultra-Orthodox Jews who refused to look at billboards featuring candidates' portraits, which they revile as graven images, and desert Bedouins in robes, some of whom arrived on camels at polling booths set up in tents. Small pockets of religious fanatics refused to vote as usual.

The Palestine Liberation Organization urged the country's 200,000 eligible Arab voters to elect candidates of Rakah, the Moscow-backed Communist party.

Observers saw little or no chance of a strong coalition government coming out of the election that could take bold new steps toward a Middle East peace.

Last-minute polls commissioned by the two major political parties showed the Labor party, which has governed Israel throughout its 29-year history, running neck-and-neck with the conservative opposition Likud bloc.

Labor says it is willing to trade some — but not all — of the territory captured from the Arabs in the 1967 war in exchange for a peace settlement. The Likud wants to keep all the occupied land.

But the chief issues in the campaign were domestic ones that have eroded Labor's popularity: the 38 per cent inflation rate, worker unrest and official corruption, including Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's forced resignation from the party leadership because of his wife's illegal bank accounts in the United States.

Expo 81's impact on valley

By GEORGE MacLAREN
PB Staff Writer

A sparse audience heard the principals of Group I, a consulting consortium, explain their role in implementing a program of environmental impact mitigation in relation to Expo 81 at Chaffey High's Spring Auditorium Monday afternoon.

Examiner Samuel Campbell opened the first session of a four-day public hearing conducted by the U.S. Department of Commerce on the preliminary draft environmental impact statement for Expo 81 shortly after 1 p.m., but recessed about 2:30 p.m. because no one else wanted to speak.

Gerhard N. Rostvold of Claremont identified Group I as a collaborative of four consulting firms with expertise in planning, science, engineering, environmental, economic, financial and real estate analysis.

He said that the four firms — Owen Menard & Associates of Claremont, L. D. King Engineering Co., Inc. of Ontario, Richard H. Wagner & Associates of Newport Beach, and Urbanomics Research Associates of Claremont "are genuinely dedicated to the proposition that the potential environmental impacts of Expo 81 be mitigated by bringing together the best available scientific, technological, social and economic resources in the world."

He said that the consortium's primary responsibility is that of serving as the "environmental conscience" of Expo 81.

He said that Expo 81 and Group I do not take the environmental implications of the expositions lightly and are committed to workable solutions compatible with the public interest.

Rostvold said the principals feel that Expo 81 can be used as a laboratory for the world to demonstrate that modern urban-industrial man can indeed channel his knowledge and economic resources toward solving or mitigating the environmental impacts inherent in man's survial here on the planet Earth.

After reading a summary of the draft impact statement, Campbell introduced Gen. James Doolittle and Richard Pittenger, who projected the potential economic benefits that Expo 81 might have on Southern California.

Doolittle recalled the solo flight of Charles Lindbergh, and called Expo 81 a "project of history-making proportions."

He said Expo 81 has a universal theme of people to people and as a "pathway to understanding."

After estimating anticipated revenues of $1.7 billion from Expo 81, Doolittle said it would leave lasting contributions.

"Our concerns parallel yours not only in protecting but improving the environment," he said.

Pittenger said the Expo 81 committee has no plans to go to the taxpayer to subsidize the exposition, and that it will be as self-sufficient as possible.

He said that millions of dollars have been saved in building time by choosing the Ontario Speedway as the Expo 81 site, and that 70 to 100 nations are expected to participate.

Ontario Mayor Paul Treadway called Expo 81 one of the major industries in the U.S. if it comes to pass.

Jack Kelly, appointed to head a communications program, explained that nine counties and 68 cities have appointed representatives to committees which will disseminate information about Expo 81.

Upland City Councilwoman Ina Petokas, speaking for herself, voiced serious concern that Expo 81 has not provided information on the exposition's impact.

Trio robs patrons in bar, then restaurant

By TONY AULT

Gunmen wearing red scarves robbed a bartender, six patrons and cash register at Deane's Bar in Cucamonga of more than $1,000 in cash and personal belongings Monday night, according to West End sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said the same gunmen, wearing different colored scarves, then robbed the Steeler's Inn in Fontana of a small amount of cash a short time later.

Deputies said three male Latins entered the Cucamonga bar about 11:30 p.m. One of the robbers was armed with a shotgun, another with a handgun and the third with a bayonet. The robbers had the bartender and the six patrons gather in one corner of the bar and lie on the floor face down.

In addition to the patrons' money, the cash register was emptied and one handgun, concealed behind the bar, was taken. The patrons and bartender were then forced into the restroom and ordered to stay there or they would be "blown away."

Deputies said the men then ran out the door, threw the patrons' car keys into a field, and sped off in a late model car, believed to be a Cadillac El Dorado or a Thunderbird.

A short time later three men, armed with identical weapons, but wearing gold colored scarves robbed the Steeler's Inn in Fontana.

The first robber, carrying the pistol, was described as being in his 20s, 5 feet 5, 120 pounds, wearing a plaid shirt over a blue shirt. The second robber was described as being in his 20s, 6 feet tall, of thin build, with light brown short hair. He was holding a shotgun. The third man was holding the bayonet.

The motorist was identified as Fred Castro, 43, of La Verne. Monique was treated for leg and forehead injuries at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Two persons were injured in a collision which involved four autos Monday morning. The accident was at Valley Boulevard and Temple Avenue.

Police reported that cars driven by Bessie I. McMinn, 71, of Pomona, and Carole E. Deem, 27, also of Pomona, collided in the intersection. Two other autos, whose drivers had stopped were damaged in the mishap.

Both of the drivers involved in the original collision were taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

Market robbed of food stamps

Ontario police are seeking a lone gunman who robbed the Stop and Go Market at Eighth Street and Baker Avenue in Ontario of a small amount of cash and food stamps Monday night.

Police said the robber was described as a Latin, 19 to 23 years of age, 5 feet 9, and of thin build.

Woman followed from bank, her purse snatched

A teen-age pursesnatcher apparently followed a woman from a Pomona bank and grabbed her purse containing $60 shortly after noon Monday, police reported.

The victim, 74, of Pomona, was walking at the Pomona Mall East near Palomares Street when the youth ran up behind her and grabbed her purse. She had cashed a check at a nearby bank a few moments before.

The thief was described as black, about 15, 6 feet tall weighing 130 pounds. He wore a green knit cap, brown jacket and dark trousers.

Church killings a year ago

Special rites mark slayings

By TONY AULT
PB Staff Writer

Exactly one year after Ignacio "Bobby" Padilla, 44, and Mrs. Manuela Cortez, 29, were gunned down outside Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church in Chino, police are continuing to "follow every lead that comes along" to bring the assailants to justice, said police Capt. Tony Linza.

On May 17, 1976, the two victims were patroling the church grounds to prevent vandals from spraying graffiti on the walls and destroying other church property when several men appeared on the street outside the church courtyard.

Numerous shots rang out, and Mrs. Padilla and Mr. Cortez collapsed with multiple gunshot wounds. The gunman escaped into the darkness with his accomplices.

The tragedy resulted in police increasing patrols in the church area. Police quizzed numerous persons about the slayings, but all were released for lack of sufficient evidence.

Capt. Linza indicated that police were "fairly certain" they knew the persons involved in the killings. "We are still investigating every lead that comes along. But, thus far, we are still unable to legally tie the persons we believe responsible with the crime.

"We are keeping an open file on the case until we can bring the suspects to justice," he added.

Special memorial rites were held Sunday at the church. Attending were Mayor Robert McLeod, other city officials, and four members of the police department who acted as a special honor guard.

The church and its members have established a special scholarship fund in memory of Mr. Padilla and Mrs. Cortez.

Interstate bus fares are hiked

It's costing bus riders more to travel this week, although the 5 per cent increase in ticket prices is less than the bus companies wanted.

Higher passenger fares were approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission last weekend for interstate and intercity bus routes. The bus companies had sought a 7 per cent hike.

The interstate bus firms were allowed a 6 per cent fare increase in March.

The ICC rejected the 7 per cent ticket price hike last Friday, telling the carriers they could file for the 5 per cent passenger hike on a 24-hour notice. That notice was filed Saturday and the higher fares took effect Sunday, an ICC spokesman said.

The commission also approved the bus companies' request for a 7 per cent increase in cargo fares.

As an example of the new passenger rates, a one-way ticket between Washington and Philadelphia goes from $10.60 to $11.15 on Greyhound. Between New York and Washington on Trailways the fare increases from $18.20 to $19.05.

The new fares apply only to shorter routes, because the major bus firms offer maximum $50 fares for long-distance travel.

These programs, offering one-way tickets anywhere in the country for $50, are unaffected by the rate hike.

Strike on at ABC

NEW YORK (AP) — Engineers and technical workers struck the American Broadcasting Co. early Tuesday in a contract dispute, but ABC promised no disruption in its nationwide broadcasts.

A spokesman for Local 16 of the National Association of Broadcast Engineers and Technicians (NABET) estimated that between 1,500 and 2,000 members walked off the job at 12:01 a.m. EDT.

Progress reported in head, neck cancer through drugs

DENVER (AP) — Researchers using high-dose and combined drug therapies are reporting major progress against advanced head and neck cancers, some of the most treatment-resistant malignancies.

Preliminary reports given Monday indicate the new treatments are more than twice as effective against advanced tumors than those used previously.

Researchers also said the results show that the practice of using radiation therapy first and drugs second probably should be reversed.

Radiation for head and neck cancers appears to inhibit the action of drugs in tumors, possibly by damaging tumor circulation, they said.

Speaking here at the annual meeting of the American Society of Clinical Oncology, researchers from the United States and England called the new results very encouraging, even though preliminary.

Head and neck tumors, which include cancers of the throat, larynx, ear and nose, afflict 50,000 Americans each year and cause about 17,000 deaths. Persons who smoke and drink alcohol appear to be at greater risk of these cancers.

Surgery and radiation therapy are often effective in curing patients with early head and neck tumors, but doctors say results with advanced cases are disappointing.

Dr. Victor Randolph of Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York said researchers used high doses of a new drug, cis-platinum, along with the widely used anticancer chemical bleomycin, on 21 patients with cancers too advanced for surgery.

Twenty of the 21, who had no previous treatment, showed response to therapy in terms of tumor shrinkage. Randolph said 71 per cent of the patients had major tumor shrinkage within three weeks.

With past drug treatments, only 20 to 30 per cent of patients with advanced head and neck cancers showed response, doctors said.

After getting drugs, the Sloan-Kettering patients received radiation treatment and 16 have completed both phases of therapy. Of this group, 12 still are responding to treatment, including 6 who are free of any detectable cancer, Randolph said.

Randolph said this combined drug-first, radiation-second approach "has impressive activity among patients with advanced cancers of the head and neck, and points out the expanding role drugs play."

Researchers from the Royal Marsden Hospital in London reported on using combinations of six anticancer drugs on 117 patients with advanced head and neck cancers.

The researchers said this battery of drugs given within a 36hour period produced tumor responses in 72 per cent of patients who had no previous radiation therapy. But the response rate dropped to 56 per cent in patients previously irradiated.

Economy still on the rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Another healthy gain in industrial output in April, despite a falloff in auto production, shows the nation's economy is continuing upward.

As the output of the nation's factories, mines and utilities expands, more jobs open up and sales and profits increase.

The Federal Reserve Board reported Monday that industrial production over-all was up eight-tenths of 1 per cent in March, the third consecutive month of growth.

Although the gain was below the March gain of 1.4 per cent, it still was a healthy increase.

The one negative aspect to the report was a 4 per cent decline in auto assemblies during the month to an annual rate of 9.3 million units.

The board blamed the decline on strikes at some auto plants and on an apparent reluctance by automakers to add to their relatively large inventories of small cars.

The production of other durable consumer goods advanced strongly during the month, as did the output of nondurable consumer goods. Durable goods, such as furniture and appliances, have a life expectancy of at least three years; while nondurable goods, including food and textiles, have a shorter useful period.

The board said production of business equipment increased eight-tenths of 1 per cent, output of construction supplies gained seven-tenths of 1 per cent and materials production jumped 1.2 per cent.

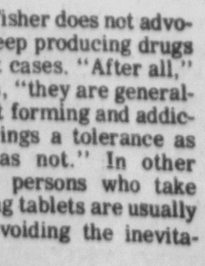
INSOMNIACS CAN SLEEP SOUNDLY "If I could only sleep!"

This statement is sufficient most of the time to stamp a case of "Insomnia" and with it the train of other symptoms that follow.

According to Dr. Fisher of the Fisher Chiropractic Offices, insomnia is basically a condition which prevents the nervous system from relaxing.



Dr. H.L. Fisher D.C.

"While several pressures on nerves can produce insomnia," says Dr. Fisher, "usually the condition is one of long standing. What generally happens," he states, "is that a person starts building to a severe case of insomnia. First there are occasional restless, sleepless nights. Then the problem begins to compound itself. A person begins to be worn out during the day thus finding his work harder and harder to accomplish. This in itself exerts further nerve pressure and sleep becomes more difficult, insomnia more prevelant."

"Of course," he adds, "the general health is affected by the lack of sleep, tense daytime activity, etc. An insomniac has a brutal path ahead of him unless he has the original cause of his troubles corrected."

Dr. Fisher does not advocate sleep producing drugs in most cases. "After all," he says, "they are generally habit forming and addiction brings a tolerance as often as not." In other words, persons who take sleeping tablets are usually only avoiding the inevitable.

"It's really a heartening experience to aid the person who suffers from severe and repeated attacks of insomnia. Their lives always seem to change dramatically, once their vitality has been restored through proper sleep," the Doctor relates.

"We look to the basic cause of the nervous tension that produces sleeplessness," says Dr. Fisher. "And in correcting the cause of the nervousness, not only is sleep a desirable end, but also the sufferer finds his wakefulness a pleasure. Vim and vigor during the day is generally as important as rest during the night."

"And don't forget," says Dr. Fisher, "when a person can kick the drug habit he rids himself of the after-effects and so important to many, the cost of the potents."

Dr. Fisher urges insomniacs, both those suffering from current acute cases, and others who through nervous tension and other symptoms are building to real problems, to visit him at his modern Chirporactic office.

The Coleridge poem on sleep has a special meaning for many. "Ah, sleep, it is a gentle thing, beloved from pole to pole . . .", is a dream of so many unfortunate people. Dr. Fisher hopes he will have a chance to aid those who desire "sleep to creep into their souls . . ."

"Maybe they should stop daydreaming about their problem and call on us for help," he says.

Walnut realty firm granted larger sign

By DAVID READER
PB Correspondent

A variance in the city sign ordinance was approved by a 4-1 vote by the Walnut City Council recently to allow a local realty firm to erect a commercial sign larger than is currently permitted in the code.

The applicant, Diamond View Realty of 20659 E. Valley Blvd., requested approval for a sign measuring 42 square feet, while the city code allows for commercial signs no larger than 30 square feet.

In voting against the variance, Mayor Richard Laughter said to show fair and impartial treatment to all citizens, the sign ordinance should be adhered to except in very special cases.

In other council action, approval of funding was given for the city's participation in the Pomona Valley Juvenile Diversion Project. The council alloted $8,561, and said it was hopeful the Walnut Valley Unified School District would also contribute funds to the project.

The council accepted the bid of Glenn B. Dorning Inc. of Ontario, for the city's purchase of a tractor at the cost of $13,295. A lower bid from another company was rejected because of non-compliance of the tractor specifications set down by the city.

Approval was also given to the Walnut Junior Women's Club to have a fireworks stand at Lemon Avenue and La Puente Road.

Local service groups sell water conservation kits

Home water conservation kits provided by the Pomona Valley Municipal Water District (PVMWD) are being offered to community service groups in the Pomona-Walnut-East San Gabriel valleys for sale to the general public.

Groups interested in participating should contact the district at 174 W. McKinley Ave., Pomona, 623-6681.

Stan Kawa, PVMWD general manager, said the district has purchased an initial order of 5,000 kits, which contain toilet-tank "dams," shower-head flow restrictors, and dye tablets for locating toilet tank leaks.

He said the kits are being sold to local non-profit service groups for a "ways and means" project. They will be resold by the groups to the public for $3.

"By offering conservation kits in this manner," Kawa said, "the PVMWD is involving a great number of people in the water conservation effort at a minimal expense to the public. We felt that rather than give the kits away, with a huge additional cost involved for administration of such a program it would be more efficient and cost effective to work with our service clubs."

Homeowners using the kits, which come with complete instructions, can reduce water use 35 to 50 per cent in toilet use, drop-shower flows from seven or eight gallons per minute to about three gallons a minute, and catch hard-to-spot toilet tank leaks. All are easily used without special tools.

"We urge use of these devices, especially the toilet dam, which is much more effective than a 'join in the john'," noted Kawa.

Organizations selling the kits are the Pomona High School Key Club and Keywanettes and the Pomona Valley YMCA.

Upland man caught fleeing accident

An Upland man was stopped by an off-duty policeman at gunpoint when he attempted to leave the scene of an accident that injured a mother and her two children on the San Bernardino Freeway west of Ganesha Avenue, Pomona, Sunday evening, the highway patrol reported.

The officers said a vehicle driven by Harry D. Werremeyer, 30, of 1350 San Bernardino Ave., struck the rear of a car driven by Judith Y. Pontius, 21, of Ontario, causing her car to collide with one driven by Paul Dignard, 56, of Van Nuys. The highway patrol said Werremeyer tried to climb over the freeway fence but was stopped at gunpoint by a Baldwin Park police officer who had stopped at the scene.

Mrs. Pontius and her two children, Robert, 5, and Jeffrey, 2, were treated for minor injuries at San Dimas Community Hospital.

Market activity

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks headed lower Tuesday in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues. Steel issues were under pressure following reports of a major brokerage's negative assessment.

Analysts said some investors, noting the Federal Reserve Board's Open Market Committee was meeting, were uncertain whether the board would change policy. The Fed recently tightened credit and caused the prime rate to climb a quarter point to 6½ per cent in the past week.

As a result, the Dow Jones industrial average, which was ahead nearly two points earlier, was off 3.90 points to 928.60 shortly before noon EDT. It had gained 4.16 Monday.

Following reports of a broker's downgrading, U.S. Steel, the most active NYSE issue, was off 1¼ to 43⅞ in trading that included a block of 100,000 shares at 44. Bethlehem Steel was off 1¼ and Armco and Lukens ¾ apiece. U.S. Steel and Bethlehem are Dow average components.

Declines overtook advances, 628 to 471, among the 1,641 issues crossing the tape. The 542 unchanged issues reflected considerable investor uncertainty about the course of the market.

Volume at he two-hour mark amounted to about 9,300,000 shares, up from the 8,600,000 traded during the same period Monday.

Franklin Mint, which fell 2¾ in active trading Monday, was the second most active issue, off ½ io 19. The company said it expects lower second quarter earnings. Pittston, a major coal issue, was the third most active issue, off ⅛ to 29.

Eastman Kodak, hard hit in recent weeks, was ahead ⅝ f lowing Monday's 1¼ advance. Many analysts said the stock was oversold.

F.W. Woolworth was off ½. The Justice Department filed a civil suit against the firm for allegedly violating the government's ban on sales of children's clothes containing treated with the chemical "tris."

Tesoro Petroleum was off ⅝ after reporting sharply lower quarterly earnings.

Prices were lower in active trading of American Stock Exchange issues. McCulloch Oil was the most active issue, unchanged at 4⅜. Resorts International A stock followed, unchanged at 14¾. Remington Arms was third, off 1 to 16¾.

Few know very much about mattresses

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The average American spends up to a third of his life asleep, but he may know less about the mattress he's lying on than he does about products that occupy only a fraction of his time.

The National Association of Bedding Manufacturers offers a guide to some of the basics, but a spokesman for the group admits that the "consumer has to rely on the knowledge of the retail salesman."

Mattress construction is a complicated process, the spokesman said. All you get to see of the product is the cover.

"Primarily you buy on feel," said the bedding industry spokesman. "The big thing today is a firm mattress. The idea is to get the firmest support possible without it feeling like a board."

You have to take the word of the salesman and the guarantee of the manufacturer that the mattress will feel the same a year from now as it does today.

A little bit of knowledge will go a long way, however, in helping you to ask the right questions. (The salesman should know the answers about construction and quality; if he doesn't you might want to switch salesmen or stores.)

Mattresses and boxsprings generally range in size from the twin — 38 inches wide by 75 inches long — to the king — 76 inches wide and 80 inches long.

Most experts, including the manufacturers, say you should buy a new boxspring whenever you choose a new mattress. If the mattress is worn out, the spring probably is due for replacement as well, they claim.

There are two basic types of mattresses: innerspring and foam. The foam mattresses are less expensive; they generally do not last as long, however.

The foam mattress consists of a core of cushiony urethane foam — either the standard type or a new, high-resiliency variety for increased support — and a synthetic cover. Combinations of foam may be laminated together to produce varying density.

The innerspring mattress is more complicated. It consists of springs, a layer of insulation — not the kind you use to save energy in your home, cushioning and a cover.

The standard double mattress (53 by 75 inches) has a minimum of about 250 coils. Some varieties may have up to 1,000 coils, but the wire used for the coils is likely to be lighter in weight. The bedding manufacturers' spokesman said the optimum construction generally is considered to include 312 coils of 13½ gauge wire. Ask the salesman or check manufacturers' literature to find out the number of coils and the strength of the wire before you buy.

The springs are covered with an insulator, either a pad of some kind or netting or a wire arrangement, designed to prevent the springs from sticking into your back and to keep the cushioning material from sinking into the center of the coils. Some manufacturers use extra insulation to increase the firmness of the mattress; others rely on a heavier gauge wire.

On top of the insulator is the cushioning material: layers of cotton felt, urethane foam or a synthetic fiber. The cushion is designed to provide surface softness for comfort.

The final component is the cover, also known as the ticking. The manufacturers group says all tickings today are made of synthetics — partly to meet federal flammability standards for resistance to ignition by a lighted cigarette and partly for cost reasons.

Other features to look for in the mattress include ventilators — little metal disks along the sides, handles so you ccn turn the mattress easily and reinforced supports around the edges to prevent sagging.

Most boxsprings are sold in sets with mattresses and the manufacturers' guarantee may depend on the two items being purchased as a pair. Read the fine print carefully.

Whatever you choose, make sure to sit and lie on the mattress. When sitting, see how well the edge of the mattress supports you. Does it spring back quickly when you get up? Lie down to check support under the shoulders and hips. Roll around a bit to make sure that the mattress does not sway or sag.

How long should the mattress last? According to the manufacturers association spokesman, the question of wear "has been plaguing the bedding industry for years.

"Consumers have a tendency to keep their mattresses for too long. No mattress is going to give good service after 20 years."

Nobody wants his job

PLACERVILLE, Calif. (AP) — George Dean, 72-year-old custom slaughterer, can't seem to find someone to learn his business and take it over. Small wonder.

Dean calls on the farms and small ranches in the Sierra foothills east of San Francisco. For $18, he'll shoot, bleed, gut and skin a head of beef, saw it in half lengthwise and haul it to a butcher's cooler, leaving a clean area behind.

For a hog the price is $15.

In 10 months last year, he slaughtered 122 head of cattle, and more hogs and sheep than he can remember.

But young folks just don't seem to have the stomach for it.

Dean lives on 60-acres his father bought for $1,000 in 1912, and he says he even has trouble these days finding helpers who will show up.

"They think they're worth $10 or $15 an hour now. I started at 35 cents an hour. And they weren't 8-hour days either, they were 10-hour days," he says.

Perhaps, it's the work itself — despite all that talk today of going back to nature.

Some of Dean's customers are city folks who moved up here for the outdoor environment, then decided to grow their own food.

When it comes time to slaughter the animal, they sometimes arrange to take the whole family on a day-long trip while Dean does his work.

Woman, 71, operates wrecking business

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Seventy-one year old Betty Lindenbaum's friends delight in introducing her as "Home Wrecker Betty." But women needn't worry about losing their husbands to her — only their houses.

"I get some icy stares from women with that kind of introduction, but they understand after I explain," says Mrs. Lindenbaum.

For 15 years, since her husband died, she has owned and operated the L.A. Wrecking Co. Her husband ran it for 40 years before that.

Mrs. Lindenbaum answers three telephones in the wrecking yard and personally supervises the demolition of homes, apartments, stores, or "anything else that comes down."

"It keeps me hopping," she said, "I go to the wrecking sites almost every day to see how things are going. We have to meet a schedule on every job.

"If the crews aren't tearing down the buildings fast enough, I tell the boys to get the show on the road," she said with a chuckle.

Martin and Merman

Still going strong

NEW YORK (AP) — Broadway was sweet, hot and happy.

Mary Martin, the sweet, and Ethel Merman, the hot, put on a two-woman show Sunday night at the Broadway Theater for a celebrity-filled audience, the happy, who paid up to $500 per ticket. The one-time event was a benefit for the theater and music collection of the Museum of the City of New York.

Miss Martin and Miss Merman, who each starred in some of Broadway's biggest hit musicals, started their show in costumes from two of their huge hits, "South Pacific" and "Gypsy," and they ended it with a duet of "There's No Business Like Show Business."

They also came down identical staircases, dressed in identical red, to the strains of "Hello, Dolly!", a show in which they both have starred.

The men singing "It's so nice to have you back where you belong," were a group of Broadway leading men, among them Yul Brynner, Burgess Meredith, Joel Grey, George Rose, dancer Peter Gennaro, composer Jules Stein and Miss Martin's son, actor Larry Hagman.

All evening, the two women kept the audience gasping at how good their voices still are and how marvelously they dance — and still have breath to sing. Miss Martin claims she's 64, not the 63 listed in "Who's Who," and Miss Merman claims she's 65, not the listed 68. On Sunday, they were both younger than springtime.

High point of it all for this listener was Miss Merman's singing "Blow, Gabriel, Blow," bright and surely better than any other singer alive could do it. Earlier, she had sung a medley of "I Got Rhythm," "Anything Goes," "Small World, Isn't It?" and "Everything's Coming Up Roses" that made one wonder if she could top it.

But her voice got even stronger as the evening went on and she kept topping everything she did. She also shared an early memory of being taken to meet George Gershwin by a producer who heard her sing at a Brooklyn movie theater. "I was in awe of him and I was in awe of his apartment. I was still living at home with my parents."

After that meeting, she was cast in "Girl Crazy."

Cyril Ritchard introduced each part of the show, including explaining how Mary Martin auditioned for two unsuccessful years in Hollywood, and he showed some pictures from her screen tests. Baby pictures and wonderful TV clips from 25 years ago also went on view. Miss Martin sang some of the standards she once warbled in bars.

Among those in the audience were Lillian Gish, Ginger Rogers, Hermione Gingold, Lauren Bacall, Claudette Colbert, Jack Paar, Margaret Truman Daniel, Gloria Vanderbilt Cooper and Bobby Short. Irving Berlin sent regrets that he couldn't be present and a check for $1,000.

S.B. supervisors lift West End building ban

Growth allocation plan adopted

By BOB SWETNAM
PB Staff Writer

Sounds of tractors, hammers and saws will once again come alive — after a brief interlude — after the San Bernardino County Board of Supervisors Monday lifted a building ban and agreed to a growth allocation plan for the county's West End.

In a move considered unlikely two weeks ago, the county joined with the cities of Ontario, Upland, Montclair and the Cucamonga County Water District in approving a plan to restrict growth until the sewage treatment crisis can be solved.

The action will permit building activity — severely restricted for the past two weeks — to start again, but at a greatly reduced rate.

County supervisors became the first agency to formally adopt the growth formula agreed by the city, county and water district officials last week.

Montclair and Upland city councils acted on the plan Monday night, and the Ontario City Council is expected to adopt an ordinance tonight.

The growth allocation plan approved by county supervisors calls for 7,364 single-family homes to be constructed in the West End during the coming year.

Of these, 3,458 homes will be constructed in the county's unincorporated areas served by the Chino Basin Municipal Water District's regional sewage treatment plant No. 1 in Ontario.

The formula will also permit 2,306 new homes in Ontario, 1,200 in Upland and 400 in Montclair.

In addition, 500,000 gallons a day of excess sewage capacity will be divided between the agencies for commercial, unspecified growth.

Construction in the West End had been in a state of uncertainty since state water quality officials threatened area officials with a complete building moratorium last March.

This had resulted from the building growth outstripping the ability of the Chino Basin Municipal Water District to provide adequate sewage treatment for the area.

State water officials ruled the district was in violation of water quality standards and ordered it to resolve the problem "forthwith."

City, county and water district officials then met to decide remaining sewage allocations. For weeks, the biggest disagreement over the remaining capacity had been between the county and Ontario.

Officials of the Cucamonga County Water District, which represents Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda, and the county supervisors had objected to an allocation formula that would have given the cities of Ontario and Upland most of the remaining capacity.

The involved agencies two weeks ago agreed to a temporary building permit ban on all residential housing until a growth allocation plan could be developed.

Some 15,000 homes were planned in the West End. Officials agreed that some of the already tentatively approved homes would have to wait to be constructed.

Those present at the board of supervisors meeting did not appear to be totally pleased with the allocation agreement.

Jim Smirl, representing West End builders, said neither builders nor construction workers liked the growth plan.

"We realize, however, in a situation such as this, there is probably no solution that can be completely fair to all parties," he added.

Ontario City Manager Roger Hughbanks said, "It is a far cry from what we thought we were entitled to, but we recognize the problem of the county area. We backed off from a line that would have been much more detrimental to the county than this plan."

Supervisor Joe Kamansky, who represents much of the area involved in the allocation plan, made the motion for the supervisors to accept the allocation proposal.

"We have a lot of differences of opinion — the cities, the Cucamonga County Water District, the builders, the board. No matter what the decision is, someone is bound to get roughed up.

"But I think we've come a long way. I think we'll come a long way in the next few months. The decisions we're making today will not be the end of the situation, but at least we'll be getting a solution off the ground."

Charlene would like a summer to talk about

Charlene, 12, loves to laugh and play. She has many friends. She does well in school.

Charlene has two pantsuits, one jacket and one pair of shoes. She is well aware of the fact that other girls at school have more than she has, yet it doesn't seem to affect her good-natured attitude towards them or school.

Charlene has learned to listen attentively while other boys and girls tell of their vacation trips. And when they ask what she did, she answers with a laugh and quickly reverses the conversation back to what they did.

Charlene was born in Pomona. She is not unhappy with her life even though she has never been farther away from her home than Los Angeles.

To Charlene, a week at a Malibu Mountain summer camp would be extremely exciting, but her family cannot afford it. Her mother supports Charlene, two little brothers and herself.

Charlene happily accepts the "big sister" role and is a great help to her mother who has her hands full holding the family together.

Camperships administered by the Donrey Public Foundation, Inc., are designed for children like Charlene.

The foundation solicits contributions from the public to support the program which is carried out by the Salvation Army Corps. Children who receive this year's camperships will be selected by Capt. Daniel Birks of the Pomona Salvation Army Corps.

Those who wish to submit names of children to receive camperships may contact Captain Birks at his office at 454 W. Orange Grove., Ave., Pomona, or call the office at 623-1579. They will be asked to fill out application forms.

Those who wish to donate money to finance the camperships ( it costs $65 to send one child to camp for one week) may make checks payable to the Donrey Public Foundation, Inc., and mail them to P. O. Box 2708, Pomona 91766.

Donations are tax deductible, and since there are no administrative costs to this program, all money donated goes directly into camperships for the boys and girls.

Upland council OKs construction plans for seniors' facility

By VONNE ROBERTSON
PB Staff Writer

The Upland City Council Monday approved "in principle" plans for the construction of a 100-unit facility for senior citizens.

The project, sponsored by the Southern California Presbyterian Homes, requires a series of legal procedures to hurdle it over several barricades in time to qualify for Housing and Urban Development (HUD) financing which has been granted, providing a late summer deadline is met.

First, the Upland Municipal Code had to be amended to add special criteria for "Senior Citizens Housing Developments" as a permitted use in any multiple family zone subject to a conditional use permit.

The amendment, approved by the council upon recommendation of the Planning Commission, allows for 33.3 units per acre, the reduction of floor space in each unit by up to 20 per cent and the reduction of parking space by up to 25 per cent.

The parking space reduction, however, includes reserving additional open space for additional parking if the city staff determines that it is needed.

The amendment allows for the reduction of the minimum floor space per unit from 700 square feet to 560 square feet, except for 10 per cent of the units designed for handicapped persons. These units must be larger to allow for the moving of wheelchairs.

The criteria for allowing a conditional use permit under this amendment is that the project must be a nonprofit, low-income development for senior citizens.

Fred Gross, executive director of the Presbyterian Homes, a nonprofit organization, said the 22-year-old corporation is "financially strong."

He added that developments in Glendale and La Jolla are similar and have been highly praised by urban planners and communities.

The Upland Presbyterian Church, which has been instrumental in the planning of the complex, said it already "has 85 people on a waiting list."

The use permit requested by the homes was for 83 units on 2.5 acres located on the north side of San Bernardino Road west of Grove Avenue.

The first proposal submitted by the Presbyterian Homes was for a 100-unit, five-story building on 2.5 acres. This was rejected by the planning department because the building was too tall and the area too dense.

Since then, the church group has purchased an additional one-half acre adjacent to the plot and redesigned the facility as a three-story, 100-unit complex with 33.3 units per acre and adequate parking.

Robert Cummings of Huntington Harbor, consultant for Housing for the Elderly, explained that the organization had been working on this project for months, but had met with many legal delays in the city.

These included the moratorium on filing plans, which the group also appealed at the Monday meeting. The appeal was granted.

"If we don't have all of the legal requirements met and our general plans done by summer, our fund reservation will expire," Cummings said.

"We must break ground by October or HUD wants its money back."

Montclair council OKs a sewage resolution

By CONRAD CASLER
PB Correspondent

"We definitely won't be going back to business as usual" after a West End building moratorium is lifted in July, a San Bernardino County planner has warned Montclair city councilmen.

Dianne Guzman, chief of advanced planning for the county, made the statement during discussion of a new formula for limited additional sewage allocations to West End communities at a City Council meeting Monday night.

San Bernardino County supervisors adopted the restrictive new formula Monday afternoon in an effort to equalize allowable amounts of increased sewage West End cities and unincorporated areas can dump into Chino Basin Sewage Treatment plant No. 1 and a nonreclaimable sewage line which terminates in Los Angeles.

Because of overtaxing of the sewage plant, supervisors earlier this year called a halt to all new building in the West End of the county.

Monday's supervisorial action extends the moratorium to July 20 when only a limited number of new construction is to be allowed — not a full-fledged return to recent years' runaway building boom in the West End which has overtaxed capacities of schools, sewage treatment plants, law enforcement agencies and other public services as well as causing more air pollution.

City councilmen unanimously adopted the resolution but not before Councilman Nelson Gentry questioned Miss Guzman in detail about a definite resumption of building after July 20.

"Some builders have told me that more than half their crews have been laid off as a result of this moratorium," Gentry said. He said unemployment was a serious problem to be considered as well as the water and air pollution problems.

In a related action, councilmen agreed partially but not totally with a Chino Basin Municipal Water District environmental impact report that urges member cities and unincorporated communities to severely redraft building and transportation ordinances to cut air and water pollution in the West End.

The study concentrated mainly on air pollution, urging more emphasis placed on planning communities in which driving is not needed or at least severely limited as well as more reliance on mass transit and local area feeder transport services.

L.V. residents will pay more for water

By BOB NAGEY
PB Staff Writer

Residents in La Verne will be paying more for their water this summer.

The City Council approved an eight per cent increase in water rates Monday that will go into effect either in July or August.

City Manager George Caswell said the increase was needed to defray the additional cost of labor, materials and energy during the past two years.

The increase is the first since 1975, when the city raised rates 26 per cent.

Under a new ordinance, the rates will range bimonthly from $8 for 5/8-inch meters to $86 for six-inch meters, with a minimum of 4,000 gallons of water.

Over that amount, the charge will be 40 cents for each 1,000 gallons.

In an unrelated matter, the council put off decision until next month on a proposal to regulate rental fees in mobile home parks.

Councilmen said they needed more feedback both from park owners and tenants to determine what was really a fair return on the investment of the operators.

After a one-hour session, the council indicated it favored establishment of a five-member commission whose job would be to handle rent control grievances.

Black Film Festival set

The Iota Psi chapter of Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity at Cal Poly will present a one-day Historical Black Film Festival in the University Union starting at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday. Admission is free.

A historian on black films will supervise the screening sessions and conduct discussions. The event is part of Black Culture Week at the university.

Many Americans are unaware of the significant contribution of blacks as film makers and performers, according to a spokesman for the Iota Psi chapter. They have made numerous silent films, early talkies, shorts and feature-length films, including dramas, comedies, musicals and documentaries.

The screening sessions are scheduled from 10 a.m. to noon, 1 to 4 p.m. and 7:30 to 11 p.m. Further information can be obtained from Roland Dykes at 622-0975.

Closing cafeteria was only a rumor ...from beauty shop

Was it a rumor?

Liz Hicks, classified employes' spokesman, asked the Chaffey school board Monday night whether the district planned to close out its cafeteria operations and contract with a private firm.

Mrs. Hicks apparently was concerned that district employes may lose their jobs in the process.

But it was the source of Mrs. Hicks' information that created a bit of humor during the otherwise slow-paced meeting.

"One of our workers heard it from a friend, who heard it in the beauty shop," said Mrs. Hicks.

That comment broke up the audience.

Supt. Mike Dirksen assured Mrs. Hicks that the cafeteria, despite losing $53,000 so far this year, would continue to operate. "It's just a rumor," he noted, referring to the possibility of closing food services down.

"You can tell the beauty operator there's nothing to it," said board chairman Adrian Chalfant.

Public Schools Week declared

Ontario-Montclair School District officials have passed a resolution declaring this week as Public Schools Week.

The district will sponsor open houses and special programs for parents during the week. Ontario Masonic Lodge and Mt. Baldy Lodge will hold their traditional dinner honoring retired educators today at 6:30 p.m. The event will feature musical entertainment by Vina Danks Junior High School students.

Poly holds training seminar

Muriel James, author and consultant in communication and human relations, will be speaker Wednesday at a training seminar in Pomona.

The seminar, at the Cal Poly Kellogg West Continuing Education Center, will be from 8:30 a.m. to 4:40 p.m. It will be cosponsored by the city of Pomona and the Pomona Management Club.

She is author of "The OK Boss," co-author of "Born to Win," and director of the Transactional Analysis Institute in Lafayette, Calif.

Other side of majority rule

Leading candidate for the title of catch-phrase of 1977 has to be "majority rule."

If only the bullheaded, white-dominated regimes of South Africa and Rhodesia would concede power gracefully to their black majorities, everything would be dandy on that continent, we are told.

Andrew Young, our highly quotable ambassador to the U.N., who seems to create a new diplomatic flap every day, recently branded the government of South Africa as "illegitimate" because "just a few million people make decisions about a nation of more than 20 million."

But black Americans, of whom Young is one, should of all people be realistic about majority rule, submits a South African newspaper correspondent in this country.

Since black Americans live as a minority in a white majority, and white South Africans are destined to live as a minority in a black majority, the two actually share a common lot, says Henry Katzew. Because of their own experience, black Americans could be a catalyst for greater understanding between white and black in South Africa. Yet there are increasingly strident calls for "majority rule."

"What are you fighting for?" he asks. "For human rights in South Africa or majority rule?" It may not even turn out to be majority rule, but rule in the name of the majority by self-appointed black dictators or oligarchies.

Unfortunately, we can already guess the answer. When majority rules does come to South Africa and Rhodesia, as it eventually must, either peacefully or through bloodshed, will Andrew Young and others who are so concerned about human rights in those countries fall as suddenly silent as they now are about the victims of "legitimate" black tyrants like Idi Amin?

Fewer students, higher cost

The number of students enrolled in the nation's public elemeniary and secondary schools has been going down little by little every year since 1971, when enrollment reached a peak of more than 46 million. This year, it is 43,721,000.

Population forecasts indicate that the decline will continue to 1983, down to about 40 million; then a gradual rise will begin.

Interestingly, despite this 2 per cent decline in public school enrollment, total expenditures for public elementary and secondary schools in the same period have soared — from $40.7 billion in 1969-70 to $67.1 billion in 1975-76. This represents an increase of 65 per cent.

Something else has been going up — the state and federal share of the education dollar. Before World War II, local governments provided over two-thirds of all support for public schools, the states furnished less than one-third and federal support was negligible.

By 1975-76, reports the Tax Foundation, the state share had risen to 44 per cent and the federal contribution was 8 per cent, but the share financed by local governments had fallen to 48 per cent. The figures are national averages; there are wide variations from state to state.

In New Hampshire and North Dakota, for example, the state governments provide less than 15 per cent of total school funds, contrasted with Hawaii, which finances 93 per cent, with the federal government supplying the remainder.

Expenditures per pupil are also vastly different from state to state. New York, which spends $2,179 per pupil, is at the top of the scale. Arkansas, which spends $881, is at the bottom. Tennessee, Missouri and Louisiana also spend less than $1,000 per pupil.

No matter how the statistics are sliced, however, Americans, through their state, local and federal taxes, are spending more and more to educate fewer and fewer children. Even the states on the bottom of the scale have registered increases of from 55 to 71 per cent since 1969.

Nixon is GOP's worst enemy

Dear Editor:

Former President Richard Nixon insisted in his TV interview with David Frost that he had no criminal intent in his mind and therefore could not be charged with obstruction of justice.

In fact, the article for impeachment as quoted by Mr. Frost said nothing about intent. It focused on acts or attempts to act illegally. This is a very clear difference which Nixon as a lawyer cannot fail to understand.

I strongly believe in the two party system, but feel that Nixon has proved to be the Republican party's worst enemy.

It seems incredible that his loyal followers were fined or jailed while Mr. Nixon becomes a millionaire by explaining his actions as President.

Oil firms rip off taxpayers

WASHINGTON — Three presidents have assigned top priority to reducing U.S. dependence on foreign oil. Yet the federal effort to cut the flow of imported oil has been an abysmal failure.

The attempt to tighten the oil valves began with Richard Nixon, who slapped stiff fees on oil imports. This was supposed to discourage overseas purchases and to encourage domestic production. It was left to the Federal Energy Administration to collect the fees.

We have documented in past columns that the program has been a total fiasco, with oil companies demanding and receiving huge refunds from the government. Now we have uncovered new evidence that the oil companies have been ripping off the taxpayers while the energy agency has looked the other way.

The fee system is in such a shambles that a confidential internal audit found: "There was no operational system to verify that companies were paying import fees on oil imports." Yet more than $560,000 in contracts had been "awarded to computerize and improve the program."

Atlantic Richfield, for example, asked for and was paid $725,000 in refunds that it didn't deserve. It took the bureaucrats two years to discover the overpayment.

Auditors recently discovered that Exxon owed $49,536 in past import fees. Despite this deficit, the energy agency paid Exxon a duplicate refund of $14,536. The collection process is so haphazard, in fact, that one oil company made out a $23 million check to an agency official instead of the U.S. Treasury.

While some of the widespread violations may be attributed to carelessness, there is evidence that some oil companies have taken advantage of the bureaucratic confusion to defraud the government.

Major Brands Distribution Company of Butte, Mont., for example, doesn't import enough oil to have to pay import fees. So the energy administrators granted the firm an exemption license in September, 1975.

But the license was improperly slipped to two other companies, which used it to import oil without paying the required fees. Detroit Edison used the bootleg license to import 56,887 barrels of oil, saving more than $35,000 in fees. Enterprise Oil and Gas brought in an additional 149,560 barrels on the same license and evaded $94,000 in fees.

A spokesman told us the Federal Energy Administration will collect the fees the two firms should have paid but will take no further action against the companies. This isn't likely to deter a practice, which agency sources claim is widespread. They tell us that millions of dollars are being lost in even more flagrant manipulations of licenses.

Footnote: None of the companies mentioned in this report would comment, except for Atlantic Richfield. A spokesman told us that the refund was an unintentional goof, that a change in the fee structure threw off the calculations.

ANGRY DICTATOR — General Anastasio Somoza, the bemedalled Nicaraguan dictator, is in high dudgeon over the insubordination of a New York Congressman.

The naughty legislator who failed to accord Somoza due respect, Rep. Edward Koch, D-N.Y., merely asked him to allow Nicaraguan newspaper publisher Pedro Joaquin Chamorro to testify before Congress.

The publisher has dared to stand up to the dictator, who has invoked a legal technicality to hold Chamorro in the country and keep him muzzled. Koch was indelicate enough to suggest to the dictator that "if Mr. Chamorro is not allowed to testify at this hearing, I must consider it a suppression of the truth."

Chamorro's testimony is sought to help Congress determine whether to cut off the military and economic aid Somoza collects from the United States. The dictator was offended, however, at Koch's tone.

He didn't deign to reply directly but sent a message signed by his secretary. "The President of the Republic has looked with surprise on . . . your note," wrote the secretary, "because of its unusual wording . . . Your terms are not in keeping with the rank with which the President of the Republic is invested that make him worthy of all regard and respect."

The secretary added darkly that Somoza "is lodging a formal protest over the unaccustomed way of addressing the President of the Republic."

The protocol isn't clear on how secretaries to dictators should address a U.S. Congressman.

WHO'S NEWS — Assistant Agriculture Secretary J. Paul Bolduc, imbued with the new White House morality, is incensed over a chain letter circulating in his department. It is a humorous letter, started as a joke, calling for the recipients to send their wives to the top name on the letter. But Bolduc took the letter seriously and fired off a scathing memo to all the department's 11,500 employees. He warned the chain-letter recipients to forward the evidence to the Agriculture Department's records division. There, presumably, the letters will be scoured for fingerprints.

— White House aide Midge Costanza, speaking to 100 women executives, began teasing a lone male in the audience. "Hey look," she chirped, "he smokes the same kind of cigar as I do." When she returned to the White House, she found a cigar in her jacket pocket. With it was the young man's business card.

Pro athletes get religion

The professional football players you see on TV close-ups play rough and appear fierce.

Each season a few make noisy news with some intemperate or violent misbehavior off the playing field.

Now, less noisy but more significant is the growing number of athletes, amateur and professional, who are identifying themselves with such organizations as the Fellowship of Christian Athletes and the Professional Athletes Outreach.

The contagion of the religious experience is traceable as the Old Testament begats.

Among the Green Bay Packers Bart Starr begat Carol Dale, Carol Dale begat Mick McCoy — and so on.

There is now a player group which meets regularly for prayer and Bible study in each of the major league football teams.

Before every game, at home and on the road, an inspirational speaker is invited to lead a pregame worship service.

Following Super Bowl XI in Pasadena last year, the huge middle guard Dave Rowe of the Oakland Raiders told a nationwide TV audience, "This is a great moment for me, but I have so many greater blessings for which to be thankful to the Lord."

Asked by the TV reporter to identify those blessings, Rowe quietly headed the list with, "A personal relationship with Jesus Christ."

His Raider teammate, George Buehler, told the same NBC reporter that having committed himself to Christ was "a far greater personal victory."

And on the losing side — in the Viking locker room Amos Martin — after his third Super Bowl defeat — said, "The human side of me does not want to accept what's happened. But I have turned everything over to the Lord and, win or lose, I can accept His will."

The player group with which he regularly shares prayer includes Vikings Jeff Siemon and Robert Miller and Wes Hamilton.

Similarly, on the professional golf tour, a prayer group of players meets each week. It includes such longtime front-runners as Gary Player. It includes such other top money winners as Rik Massengale, Bob Gilder, Kermit Zarley, Lynn Lott, Wally Armstrong, Howard Twittey and Larry Nelson.

And with a committed Christian in the White House, observers are entitled to wonder about this conspicuous upthrust of evangelical religion. Is it a fad or a genuine religious renaissance?

Evidence: Nationally, book sales increased last year 7.8 percent; religious book sales increased 18.4 percent.

Nationally, church membership, after being in decline for two decades, increased a fraction last year.

George Gallup's pollsters find that one person in three now says that he or she has been "born again."

And Chairman Richard Wiley of the Federal Communications Commission says, "The United States is experiencing a renaissance of morality and religion: a real revival is beginning to permeate our society."

Just in jest

Many and varied are the conservation plans being proposed in connection with today's energy shortages. Yet in almost all instances we are trying to do it the hard way. What we fail to realize is that 70 or more years ago our Pomona forefathers had all the answers necessary to solve such problems. Take the conservation of electricity as a typical example. Back in the early 1900s here's how Pomona's city fathers met that challenge. They had a contract with the Edison Co. to provide street lighting but in the interest of conservation and economy that contract specified such lighting was not to be furnished on nights when the moon was shining brightly.

Inventory tax is spotlighted

By EARL G. WATERS

In what seems to be an attempt to take advantage of Gov. Jerry Brown's new found efforts to improve his image in the eyes of the commercial world, big business has launched a concerted drive to shuck the inventory taxes levied by local government.

At least three bills dealing with this tax on personal property are under consideration in the legislature. The most favored, and one which reportedly is being backed by the governor, is SB 443 by Sen. Jerry Smith which would phase out the tax over a five year period. Under its provisions the state would reimburse local government for the loss of revenues up to $400 million annually.

The arguments paraded in its behalf are replays of those which have been presented in previous sessions and which successfully reduced the tax by 50 per cent several years ago. That reduction is already costing the state $400 million a year in subsidies to cities and counties.

The contentions are that it is a capricious tax, falling heavily on some business and not at all on others; that it leads to economic disruptions in sales practices and periodic unemployment as businesses lower their inventories in anticipation of the March assessment date; and that it acts as a serious deterrent to business as new ventures avoid California while others expand outside the state.

Backers of the measure claim endorsements of more than 150 statewide and regional industrial, agribusiness, retailer, labor and chamber of commerce groups. Local governments appear to have no strong objections to the elimination of the tax as long as the state acts to replace the lost revenues. Their position is akin to having one's cake and eating it too.

For, if the glowing contentions about how the removal of the tax will spur business expansion thus broadening the property tax base, creating more jobs and boosting sales tax revenues are right, it would seem the gains would overcome the losses in local government revenues. That probably is the reasoning behind SB 203 authored by Sen. Dennis Carpenter. His bill would wipe out the tax by 1982 without any reimbursements to the cities and counties and is naturally opposed by them.

Compromise approaches have been offered by Senators Robert Presley (SB 89), Nick Petris (SB 154) and John Stull (SB 300). Stull and Petris strike directly at the criticisms that the tax falls heaviest on small business. Both would exempt small businesses with Stull excluding inventories under $12,500. The State Board of Equalization discloses that 83 per cent of the businesses in the state would be exempt under his bill.

Interestingly it is the remaining 17 per cent which account for 92.5 per cent of the total revenues from the tax. The picture emerges that the elimination of the tax would benefit big business more than the small enterprises.

Legislative tax experts point out that whether reimbursement is made by the state or not, elimination of the tax will result in a tax shift either to property owners or income taxpayers.

They concede the tax has caused some businesses to warehouse in neighboring states and that problem may grow as the drive to eliminate the inventory tax has spread throughout the Western states. They also accede the difference between the tax on inventories and taxes on more permanent assets such as fixtures and machinery, since stockpiles can be reduced during the inventory period. They say this could be remedied by bills offered by Presley and by Assemblyman Henry Mello both of which propose averaging inventory stocks throughout the year rather than a given date.

Ann Landers

Same idea as Adolf Hitler's

Dear Ann Landers: The only way we can have a better world is to have better people. And the only way we can have better people is by the careful and diligent process of selective breeding and selective extermination.

Homo sapiens is the only species that deliberately breeds from the weaklings, the cripples, the immature, the 4-F's, the incompetents, the lunatics, the criminals, the alcoholics, the diseased, the chain smokers, and the aged. These individuals are the carriers of hereditary Mendelian defects. They often marry each other and beget offspring who inherit the physical and mental weakness of both parents.

Average life expectancy goes up a fraction each year, so it appears that I will probably have to stay around a while and witness the decline of the human race because no one has the nerve to do what needs to be done. I mean make selective breeding and extermination of the unfit the law of the land. — Anonymous.

Dear Non: If your plan goes through, you may not be around to witness anything. If the "exterminators" find out you are a "chain smoker," "immature" or a "4-F" you'll be hauled off to the oven or a gas chamber.

Someone else had the same idea you expressed. His name was Adolf Hitler.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing in regard to the letter signed, "No Thanks In Pennsylvania." The writer complained that her nieces and nephews never thanked her for gifts, nor did they reciprocate in any way. Her question, "Should I continue to give?"

Your answer "No" was to the point, but it left her without alternatives. You missed an opportunity to help people who persist in trying to create meaningful relationships through gifts. This technique never works. It usually leads to exploitation of the giver.

No matter what this aunt does for nieces and nephews who do not acknowledge birthday and Christmas checks, they will never give her what she is looking for. I wish you had advised the aunt to look outside her family for the acceptance and satisfaction she seeks. There are many worthy organizations who would appreciate her generosity. Unless "givers" find satisfaction, they are headed for lonliness in their old age. — B.E.S., Board Of Global Ministries, United Methodist Church

Dear B.E.S.: Thank you for viewing the problem from all sides, which I failed to do. There's a heap of sound advice in your response. I hope your letter is taken seriously by BOTH the givers and the takers.

Dear Ann: I have a few words for that idiot who thinks women should not be expected to tip when they eat out. I'm a waitress who has worked most of my life and I'd ten times rather serve men.

Women are stingy tippers. They demand more service and request a lot of substitution. (Two vegetables, no potato.) They almost always leave the table in a mess. I think they're getting even with their kids who leave messy tables for THEM to clean up.

I'd rather serve males any day. — South Dakota

Dear S.D.: In your field you are the authority and I'll take your word for it. I hope your message gets across to the females out there who recognize themselves.

Proper life jacket for dog

DEAR DR. MILLER: Since the last boating season we've acquired a small dog and plan to get a life preserver for her. Is there more than one kind? If so, what features do you look for in a lifejacket for a dog? — K.E.

DEAR K.E.: Yes, there is a choice. Favor a jacket providing maximum flotation with minimum bulk, one that fits your dog well, with flotation far enough forward so a maximum lift keeps her head high. Ideally, the jacket will have a loop or "handle" over the back so there's something for a boathook or eager helping hand to get hold of.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Alfie, my pet earwig, is awfully dumpy during the day. Why? Another thing, my Dad says if Alfie got loose he'd head for his plants and tear them up with his pinchers! Would Alfie do that? — H.H.

DEAR H.H.: Since he's nocturnal, he's naturally sleepy (or dumpy) during the day. If Alfie earwig is a member of the family Forficulidae, or common earwigs, then he's perfectly capable of damaging cultivated plants. He wouldn't be chomping with his cerci (pinchers), however, these are posterior appendages used for defense. He'd chew from the other end . . .

DEAR DR. MILLER: My houseplants suffer. So do I because I love them. I love Muffie, my cat, too, but I'd love her more if she wasn't always eating my plants. She's killed some. Some of them have almost killed her. Her doctor said the plants were poisonous. I don't want to give up either Muffin or the plants, but they certainly don't get along together. No matter how I try to keep them separated, she always manages to reach some somehow. She can climb anything, including bare walls, to get at a plant. Any suggestions as to how I can keep my "family" together and intact is desperately needed. — V.R.

DEAR V.R.: Muffie's mayhem may be minimized by giving her greenery alternatives. If it's readily available, freshly sprouted rye grass on a continuing basis, might prove acceptable to her.

Since pussycat plant poachers favor specific plants, you can enhance the effectiveness of the grass sprouts by keeping her former favorites behind a green (or some other color) door.

400,000 heroes to idolize

Every time there's a "Most Admired" poll I vacillate between Sylvia Porter and Sara Lee.

Usually I end up voting for Sylvia, because balancing your checkbook and speaking financial fluently does seem to be a bit more dazzling than getting a cake out of a pan. (Besides, I've never seen Sara Lee and she could be a size 3 and under 30, which automatically turns me off.)

People's taste in heroes and heroines is very personal, but I can't help being amazed at a poll of the Top Ten favorites of teenagers throughout the country.

The No. 1 personal hero or heroine was Farrah Fawcett-Majors (who replaced Richard Nixon last semester), No. 2 was Jerry Lewis, No. 3, Nadia Comaneci, the Olympic gymnast, while No. 4 (and this is important) was No Vote.

It's sorta sad that somewhere between Nadia Comaneci and Paul Michael Glaser (TV's Starsky to Hutch) there is a void . . . a large block of young people who don't think there's anybody great enough to really idolize.

That's why today — because I like young people — I'm going to give you an honest-to-goodness hero for your No. 4 spot. In fact, I'm going to give you 400,000 of them.

You say you admire bravery? They've got it. You admire athletic prowess? They've got it. You want a hero who won't let you down? No way. You want a hero you can look up to? Someone your own age? You got it.

For the No. 4 spot, I offer you the 1977 Special Olympics teams from the United States . . . 400,000 mentally retarded kids who ran races in their wheelchairs, track and field on crutches, played floor hockey, bowled, played volleyball, and swam.

The teams this month competed and racked up 400,000 medals. Everyone is a winner in the Special Olympics. Everyone who comes across the finish line gets a medal and a hug. Their motto is, "Let me win, but if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt."

These heroes are on a first-name basis with defeat. Some were born with it. For years, they stood outside of the world and looked in. Then in 1968, in cooperation with the Kennedy Foundation, the first Special Olympics competition was held in Chicago.

The stories that come out of this competition are enough to bring tears. The volleyball game where the coach was screaming "Win," and one of the players walked off the floor over to her coach and said, "I couldn't hear you with all the noise. What do you want?" The runner who, when the gun went off, put his hands over his ears. The sprinter who was leading, but who went back to pick up her fallen friend.

No heroes? Believe me, no one feels so tall as when he stoops to put a medal around a Special Olympian.

Dr. Lamb

Angina pectoris from heart

DEAR DR. LAMB — For the past six or eight months, after eating a substantial meal I have been bothered with rather sharp pains in my chest, but only if I exercise too much. Even walking (unless real slow) causes the pain. By restraining all activity the pain subsides in 10 or 15 minutes. The symptoms appear about an hour after eating.

When my stomach is empty I never have this pain but I get tired much quicker than formerly. Can you tell me why I have this pain and what remedy could cure it?

I am 78 years old, 5 feet 7 and weigh 165 pounds. During my working years my weight usually averaged about 180. For five or six years I have been taking medicine for high blood pressure. For the last several years, though, my pressure is only 140 or 150 over 50 or 60. I have nitroglycerin pills but have never taken any because I just relax and am soon OK again. Up to now I have never been a patient in any hospital nor have I ever had an operation.

DEAR READER — You probably have angina pectoris, chest pain from your heart. With your past history of high blood pressure and your age it is logical to assume that you have fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries to your heart, limiting the blood flow to your heart muscle. Apparently your doctors thought you had this before or they would not have given you nitroglycerin tablets.

Chest pain with exertion is one sign of heart disease. When that is the cause the pain usually goes away with rest. In the days when downtown shopping was still the mode of life, people with this problem would often stop in front of a store window and gaze at the merchandise until the pain went away.

It takes work to digest a meal. The increased work of digestion makes it easier to bring on heart pain with exertion. This applies only to people with heart disease, not normal people. In such patients, not healthy people, it is wise to avoid exertion for some time after the meal is over. To give you more information on heart pain I am sending you The Health Letter 2-10, Heart Attack, Myocardial Infarction, Angina Pectoris. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

Some foods seem to increase the tendency of the blood to clot or sludge and this may make matters worse. These are chiefly the fatty foods. You can check this and see if you are more likely to have this effect after a meal that contains more fat.

One of the most helpful things you can do for yourself is to lose weight. Since you are not as active now as you once were it is likely that you have had a change in body composition — to more fat and less muscle. The thinner you are, short of starvation or malnutrition, the less load you will have on your heart and the better you will do. You should also be on a diet restricting fat, particularly saturated fat, and cholesterol. Smaller more frequent meals may work better for you too but you will need to be thin.

(Because of the volume of mail Dr. Lamb cannot answer your letters personally but he will answer representative letters of general interest in his column. Write to him in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.)

Fights start late in bars

If two men get into a violent jealousy fight over some girl in a singles bar, it's almost always after 10 p.m. Or so a proprietor of such reports. A. Hemophobia. Hemophobiacs do not make good surgeons, bullfighters, butchers, ets. In a related matter, please note, the world's ophidiophobiacs outnumber all those other people not so identified. Ophidiophobia is the fear of snakes.

Q. "In San Francisco's Chinatown is the city-block-long golden dragon called 'Gum Lung.' He only comes out on parade night to celebrate the Chinese New Year. How many men does it take to make him dance?"

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Here is a hand that caused some great excitement in the finals of the 1936 Spingold. North and South were using the Culbertson four-and-five-notrump convention. Other expert pairs disdained any four-notrump convention, although Blackwood was becoming popular in the middle West.

In any event, they reached seven spades and it was up to West to lead. He groaned and sighed: "What am I supposed to lead. They bid seven without using their convention."

Then he studied a while and finally led the four of hearts.

South, a great player, had one weakness. His psychology was way below normal. He looked over dummy, wondered just why West was talking and finally decided that West was trying to protect three trumps to the queen. So, South led his king of spades at trick two. West showed out and the slam was gone to no man's land.

South demanded a ruling about West's remark. He got one quickly. It was pointed out to him that there was a correct play. That would be to play dummy's ace of spades. If both opponents followed he might try to master mind a second-round finesse, but when West showed out his problem would have been over.

Ali wins another dance

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Muhammad Ali still has some fights in his future, but with each outing the question grows over how much talent is left in the heavyweight champion.

Even Angelo Dundee, Ali's longtime trainer, found it difficult to evaluate the champ after he scored a unanimous 15-round decision Monday night over lightly regarded challenger Alfredo Evangelista of Spain.

"Is this the best he can do?" Dundee said. "Who knows? He's still a great fighter ... at 35, and still dancing like that. He was comfortable. Not breathing hard."

Like Dundee, Ali talked mostly of his ability to dance at the age of 35. No one in Ali's camp discussed his punching power, or lack of it.

The champion did most of his scoring with left jabs as he backpedaled across the ring in the Capital Centre, where a little more than a year ago he was awarded a controversial 15-round decision over Jimmy Young.

Ali weighed 221¼ for Evangelista, compared to 230 for the Young bout. But he didn't pack the punch to put away an opponent who only four times previously had only gone as many as eight rounds.

"I tried to knock him down but I couldn't do it." Ali confessed during his post-fight monologue which included a pitch for the upcoming motion picture based on his life and a needle for reporters who had previously downgraded Evangelista.

Dundee said he thought Ali made a definite effort to floor Evangelista in the eight and ninth rounds, and claimed he almost succeeded once after the challenger missed a roundhouse left.

"But the guy was awkward," Dundee said. "He covered pretty good, and Ali's not the greatest body banger in the world."

Referee Harry Cecchini scored the bout 71-65 for Ali, with judges Terry Moore and Ray Klingmeyer each giving the champion a 72-64 edge.

Evangelista, through interpreter Eddie Mafuz, said he was happy he had proven a worthy challenger, but contended he would have won had the fight been held in Spain— where the native of Uruguay has become a naturalized citizen.

Asked if he was satisified with the decision, Evangelista replied through Mafuz: "Ali is the champion and we were fighting in Maryland, so he was expecting the worst."

The decision which went against Young a year ago apparently scared off George Foreman, who preferred not to face Young in the Capital Centre for fear the Maryland officials would favor him. The bout then was held in Puerto Rico.

While some boos greeted the Ali-Young decision, the crowd of 12,000 seemed resigned to the inevitable Monday night.

Ali, who is believed building up to a lucrative fourth bout with Ken Norton, will have to be much sharper in his next start.

In his post-fight interview, Ali contended that negotiations were under way for him to face unbeaten Larry Holmes. That fight would be promoted by Don King, probably at the Meadowlands in East Rutherford, N.J.

Before the fight, however, it was reported that Madison Square Garden in New York had all but lined up Earnie Shavers, a veteran slugger, to be Ali's next challenger.

"I know my competition is working tenaciously to make the fight," said King, who also noted that his son, Carl, had divested himself of all interest in Holmes—and that he was now handled by Rick Gichetti.

Dundee, in comparing the two possible opponents, said: "Holmes is young and coming up; Shavers is a great banger. With him, it's go or no go."

As for Evangelista, Ali urged reporters to give the challenger credit.

"Don't tell me he was a bum," Ali said. "He was good . . . better than Bobick." That was in reference to the 58-second knockout of Duane Bobick last week by Norton.

Evangelista, 13 years younger than Ali, was forced to do most of the chasing in the bout when he was trying to penetrate Ali's rope-a-dope tactics.

At one time, the interpreter disclosed, Evangelista called to Ali: "Why do you run so much? Stay and fight." But the taunting was in Spanish, and had less effect on Ali than the challenger's blows.

The turnout for the card, which included two other champions, fell about 8,000 short of filling the Capital Centre.

Alfredo Escalera of Puerto Rico, the World Boxing Council's junior lightweight champion, knocked out Carlos Becerril of Pomona, Calif., 38 seconds into the eighth round of a scheduled 15-rounder.

In a non-title bout, Roberto Duran of Panama, the World Boxing Association's lightweight champ, scored a 10-round decision over Javier Muniz of Los Angeles.

Angels going backwards again

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — The Angels Monday night played back to the disappointing form that made them one of the major early-season flops of the 1977 baseball season.

In the 11-inning, 8-7 loss to the Boston Red Sox, all the old frustrating ingredients were present.

There was ineffective starting pitching, shaky relief pitching, failure to execute in the field, and a puzzling move, or lack of move, by manager Norm Sherry.

Starter Gary Ross was almost unhittable in the first four innings. In a brilliant exhibition, he struck out five, gave up only one hit and allowed only two balls to be hit out of the infield.

After a double and infield hit followed a tapper to the mound in the fifth inning, Ross got back on the beam and got Dwight Evans to ground into an inning-ending double play.

But the only thing Ross could do in the sixth was hit Bosox bats. Line drives went screaming in every direction at Anaheim Stadium. You'd have thought Charlie Brown was on the mound.

A five-run Boston sixth saw home runs by Jim Rice and George Scott and a triple by Rick Burleson. Seven men went to the plate and all but one hit line drives.

"It happened so fast, we couldn't get anybody ready," said an obviously anguished Sherry. "He (Ross) started getting the ball up and then he couldn't put anything where he wanted it. God Almighty."

The question Sherry couldn't answer was, why in the world he didn't go out and talk with Ross, or send someone else out to call time and talk with Ross. One of the infielders could have done it.

The idea was to stall until Don Kirkwood had time to loosen up. If Ross doesn't throw the ball, the Bosox can't hit it. The fact that Sherry didn't try to stall is incredible.

Sherry finally got Kirkwood in after Boston had taken a 5-2 lead. Kirkwood got the final out, but gave up a leadoff homer to Evans the next inning.

Dave La Roche came in to pitch the ninth and, as it turned out, the tenth inning, but gave up a leadoff home run to Scott in the ninth.

Eight of Boston's first 11 hits were for extra bases, four homers, three doubles and a triple.

La Roche went two innings which is as long as he's gone this year, so Sherry brought in Paul Hartzell to pitch the Boston 11th.

Hartzell (1-4) retired the first two batters then gave up three straight singles and the winning run.

The game-winning hit, by former Angel Denny Doyle, was a simple grounder that rolled right by first baseman Tony Solaita.

Solaita swatted at it like he was swatting a fly and that was the ballgame.

The Halos wasted a three-run rally in the ninth when they scored three times on four hits including rookie Gil Flores' bases-loaded triple and Solaita's second double and third hit of the contest.

"I thought we were going to win," said Sherry, mournfully. "We had the chance."

With the winning run in the form of Flores at third and the bases loaded with only one out, Bosox relief ace Bill Campbell struck out Don Baylor (0-for-5) and got Solaita to ground out ending the inning.

So the Angels are now 1-9 in one-run decisions, 1-3 in extra-inning games and 15-20 in the standings.

ANGEL ANGLES — Wayne Simpson (2-3) and Ferguson Jenkins (4-2) will be the pitchers as the brief, two-game series winds up tonight. Simpson's job as a starter reportedly is on the line.

"We got to win Tuesday (tonight)," Sherry moaned, "and then we got to beat Minnesota when they come in. Bleep Bleep."

The first-place Twins (23-11) come in for four games beginning Thursday.

Joe Rudi has a sinus infection and missed Monday's game. Rudi had been listed as available for pinch-hitting duty, but the doctor sent him home about the third inning.

"I sure woulda used him if he'd been here," groaned Sherry. Instead Andy Etchebarren hit in the 11th with two out and the winning run at second base. Etchebarren fanned.

The Halos finally got around to requesting unconditional release waivers on Mike Cuellar. 'There ain't nobody at Salt Lake City that can help us," moaned Sherry. Harry Dalton's great farm system has fired another blank.

Escalera shocks Becerril, friends

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Alfredo Escalera bounded into his dressing room, leaped atop a row of lockers and picked up a white canvas sack.

"I have a surprise for you," he said with a smile, and tipped the bag upside down.

Out slithered a 7½-foot boa constrictor, a pet of Escalera's named Aoli. The shock among those in the room was similar to that Escalera had given Carlos Becerril moments earlier.

The Puerto Rican knocked out Becerril, a Mexican native using Pomona as his home while he trains in Los Angeles, at 38 seconds of the eighth round of their scheduled 15-rounder at Capital Centre Monday night in defending his world junior lightweight championship.

Also on the card, which included Muhammad Ali's defense of the world heavyweight crown with a unanimous 15-round decision over Spain's Alfredo Evangelista, lightweight champion Roberto Duran of Panama scored a unanimous verdict over Javier Muniz in a 10-round non-title bout.

As the snake rested atop the lockers, Escalera danced on a stool and said he was pleased with his performance despite a dispute that had disrupted training.

The champion explained that Filberto Lebron, his old manager, had returned home because of Escalera's feelings that "they were handling my affairs without consulting me."

The fighter's wife and Rafael Ostolaza now were managing his career, Escalera said through an interpreter.

"At this point it was a bit difficult because of the problems with the manager," he said. "But it was a good fight and I'm looking forward to my next fight when I'll be in even better shape."

Escalera staggered Becerril with a right in the first round, then battered the challenger the rest of the way.

He said he would like to fight next month in San Juan against Tyrone Everett, whom he recently beat in a disputed decision in Everett's hometown of Philadelphia.

Duran was far from sharp in beating Muniz, from Los Angeles. But the durable Panamanian said his sub-par performance was partly due to a lack of training caused by a motorcycle accident four months ago.

It was the first fight since the mishap for Duran, who displayed an inch-long wound on his ankle that still was stitched together.

Bill Campbell making up for slow start this season

By DON BRADLEY
PB Staff Writer

ANAHEIM — Bill Campbell was supposed to have the night off. Unfortunately for the Angels, Boston Red Sox manager Don Zimmer changed his mind and put Campbell to work.

The former Ganesha High and MSAC pitcher hurled three innings of relief, his fourth straight appearance, and picked up the victory as Boston edged the Halos, 8-7, Monday night.

Campbell now has three saves and a win in the last four games the Red Sox have played.

"He's a hell of a pitcher," said Bosox manager Don Zimmer. "When he got off to a slow start at the beginning of the season, all our writers wrote him off. But he was the best pitcher in the league last year and we knew what he could do."

The 6-3, 190-pound righthander lost three games in his first five appearances for the Red Sox. But since he lost that third game, April 25, he has appeared in nine more games pitching 18&1/3 innings while allowing only two earned runs for a 1.00 ERA. He has struck out 15, won two games and saved six.

Campbell's three-inning stint was not his most artistic. He allowed four hits, a run, struck out four and walked three.

But two of the walks were intentional and if Fred Lynn had been able to stay in the game in centerfield, Campbell probably wouldn't have been charged with any runs and Boston would have won in nine innings.

Lynn has played only the last three games after missing the first 27 because of injury.

"He (Lynn) came up to me and said he was tired," Zimmer explained. "And he really was. His legs were quivering. You have to remember he got back in action in Seattle on Astro-Turf and that's very hard on the legs anyway."

So rookie Dave Coleman, a first baseman-outfielder, went in to play centerfield in the eighth inning.

When the Angels batted in the last of the ninth, Boston led, 7-4.

Tony Solaita started a three-run rally with his second double and third hit of the game. Dave Chalk walked and Bobby Grich drove in Solaita with a single.

Campbell was summoned to replace Jim Willoughby and got Bob Jones on a short flyball. Pinch hitter Ron Jackson singled to load the bases.

Rookie Gil Flores hit a wicked liner. Coleman, who was playing short anyway, started in, then across toward right and the ball screamed by him for a three-run triple to tie the score.

Then Campbell flashed the form that made Zimmer call him the best pitcher in the league.

Intentional walks to Jerry Remy and Bobby Bonds loaded the bases. Campbell then struck out Don Baylor and got Solaita to ground out and the game went into extra innings.

"If he (Coleman) had started back instead of starting in, I still don't think he would have caught the ball," said Zimmer. "I think it still would have been over his head."

Whatever, Campbell kept the Angels at bay from then on. He said the mis-judged hit by Flores didn't bother him.

"Those things happen," he shrugged. "The only thing that has bothered me was my slow start. I didn't get down or lose my confidence or anything like that. I got very mad at myself because I wasn't doing the job. This team is a contender and I wasn't contributing."

Dodgers left in the 'Lerch'

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies may have the most potent one-two lefthand pitching punch in the National League.

Already, veteran Steve Carlton and rookie Randy Lerch have accounted for 10 victories — five each.

It was Lerch's turn Monday night as he beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 10-6 for his fifth win against two losses. It was also the Phillies' fifth consecutive victory and 12th in their last 16 games.

The score in no way indicates the gutty seven-inning performance by the 22-year-old Lerch. He gave up just three earned runs, and after the first inning allowed but four hits.

Lerch really put on a show in the fifth inning after Reggie Smith walked and Ron Cey doubled with none out.

The 6-3 Lerch threw a series of wicked sliders and fastballs that struck out Steve Garvey, Rick Monday and Dusty Baker to frustrate the Dodgers, who trailed 7-5 at the time.

While Lerch was holding the Dodgers at bay, Garry Maddox led a 14-hit attack on three pitchers, including starter Tommy John who had a three-game winning streak snapped. Maddox had a double, two singles and two RBI.

Lerch had a rough start. The Dodgers scored three in the first inning, two on Smith's eighth home run, and another on a double by Monday.

Dedeaux happy at USC

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of the most successful skippers ever in baseball on any level, his name is largely unknown except to baseball insiders because he chose to toil in the relative obscurity of the college ranks.

Rod Dedeaux, at the University of Southern California for the past 35 years, might have become a major league manager, possibly even followed in the footsteps of Casey Stengel. But he preferred the college game.

"Over the years there have been several offers to manage in the big leagues," said the collegiate coach. "It's been a real temptation. The closest I came to leaving USC was when I was offered a coaching job under Stengel with the Yankees in the 1950s."

Stengel, who died in 1975, was Dedeaux's friend for many years. Dedeaux said he was offered the coaching job with the understanding that he would eventually succeed Stengel.

"There were a couple of reasons I stayed at USC," said Dedeaux. "I felt obligated to the employes in my transportation and warehousing organization, and I have always deeply enjoyed coaching the young guys and watching their development."

The wealthy Dedeaux, who owns the trucking business he was referring to, said coaching the Trojans — and winning — keeps him young.

"When we win, I feel real young," said Dedeaux, who is 62. "At the beginning of the season, I would have thought I wouldn't be coaching that much longer, but the way I feel now it could be years."

Dedeaux, a part-time employe of USC in the school's rather unusual coaching setup, is used to winning. Against collegiate opponents, his teams have compiled a 1,041-332-3 record and won 10 national championships.

USC, 42-18 this spring, begins its quest for an 11th title this weekend when the Trojans host Washington State, 34-12, in a best-of-three series to determine the Pacific-8 Conference representative in post-season play.

Southern California will be trying to return to the College World Series for the first time since 1974, the last of five straight national championship seasons.

Many Dedeaux-trained players have gone on to make their marks in the major leagues.

Some 25 former Trojans were on major league rosters at the start of spring training prior to the 1977 season. Among players coached by Dedeaux at USC are Tom Seaver, Fred Lynn, Dave Kingman, Ron Fairly, Jim Barr, Bill Lee, Steve Kemp and Roy Smalley.

Dedeaux has fond memories of those athletes and many others, but when asked about them, he preferred to talk about a man who served as batboy for the Trojans for five years during the 1940s.

"Georgie Anderson was a great person," said Dedeaux. "He may have only been our batboy, but he's done all right in baseball.

"He's better known now as 'Sparky.'"

Cleon Jones is charged with assaulting officers

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A preliminary hearing has been set for May 24 for former New York Mets outfielder Cleon Jones, who is charged with resisting arrest and assualting police officers.

Jones says the patrolmen assaulted him in the Sunday incident.

Jones, 34, was free on $2,000 bond today after being charged in the incident in which two policemen received minor injuries and Jones received a head cut in the setto.

Detective Sgt. Frank Woodward said Jones fought with officers Carl Freeman, William Lundy and Randall Smith after Freeman stopped Jones' car for having improper taillights.

Jones, who has been operating a barbecue restaurant since his major league career ended last year, said the incident occurred when he pulled into the restaurant lot. He said one of the officers manhandled him when he balked at signing a road bond for improper taillights and not having a driver's license on his person.

Jones said he was not familiar with such papers and, when the officer grabbed him and threatened him with jail, "I started pushing."

He said he broke free and ran, but one of the officers came at him in a car and pulled a gun on him.

Bumping heavy at Indy?

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — They will be doing The Bump in Indy this weekend.

The bumping could get fairly heavy, too, as more than two dozen cars compete for the remaining dozen or so spots open in the lineup for the May 29 Indianapolis 500.

Only the 33 fastest cars will start in the $1 million race and when the 12 vacant spots are filled, the bumping of slower qualifiers begins. It all happens Saturday and Sunday, the final weekend of time trials.

The list of non-qualifiers at this point very likely does not include the name of the race winner. But several of them could do reasonably well in the race. And from top to bottom the prize money is good. Last place pays about $14,000, which is more than first place pays at some tracks.

Among the best bets to qualify:

Billy Vukovich—son of the 1953-54 winner—hasn't had his new Lightning up to speed yet, but he should get that handled this week.

Bill Puterbaugh—Indy's top rookie in 1975 also is looking for more speed, and likely to find it.

Dick Simon—Should have enough practice time this week to get his new "Chinese Lightning" dialed in.

Tom Bigelow—Spun while qualifying near 190 m.p.h., will be back.

Janet Guthrie—A sure bet last week before a practice crash, but fading now. She can do it if the car can. In practice Monday, it looked like the car can't.

Salt Walther—Should be plenty fast enough if the motor stays together.

Graham McRae—1973 Indy Rookie of the Year will get in Sunday if teammate Walther does Saturday.

Clay Regazzoni—A qualifing attempt less spectacular than his flip at 190 Sunday should put the Grand Prix veteran in.

Vern Schuppan—Only has one chance of three left. The 1976 top rookie ran out of fuel Sunday a half-mile from completing a solid qualifying run.

Steve Krisiloff—Another last chance. He crashed Sunday on his second try for a position.

The rest of the list is full of question marks—good drivers with cars that aren't fast enough, and not-so-good-drivers who can't make good cars go fast.

If some of the good cars could be paired up with the good drivers, it's possible that names like Jerry Grant, Bob Harkey and John Martin will pop into the lineup.

What about those cars already in the lineup? Are their speeds safe, especially Gary Bettenhausen's slow 186.5?

"I think everyone who is in there now is safe," said U.S. Auto Club Technical Chief Frank Delroy, who has inspected and thoroughly tested every car entered here this month.

"It'll take about 185 to make it, so it looks like all the 186's and up are safe. The track is getting slower every day," Delroy said.

It may be that attrition takes care of part of the problem. Rookie Gary Irvin wiped out his car in practice Monday while Regazzoni sent one of his to the junk pile Sunday.

Surgery for Bench?

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench says the injury which kept him out of the recent three-game series against San Francisco could involve cartilage damage.

"Surgery is a real possibility," Bench said.

Bench said the team physician Dr. George Ballow informs him the problem seems to be centered above the knee joint. However, no surgery yet has been planned and no orthogram has been taken of the knee.

Right now, the team management is playing a waiting game, hoping the knee will respond to treatment.

Money woes hitting NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — The four teams to survive the demise of the American Basketball Association are finding the price of survival to be costly indeed.

"Our four newest members have financial problems, in some instances quite serious problems," said National Basketball Association Commissioner Larry O'Brien, referring to the Denver Nuggets, Indiana Pacers, New York Nets and San Antonio Spurs.

The problems, serious enough to force the teams to seek relief from the NBA, are an outgrowth of the agreement by which the four clubs became part of the league last summer.

In return for places in the pro basketball establishment, the four ex-ABA teams agreed to pay an entrance fee of $3.2 million each; to buy out the Kentucky and St. Louis ABA clubs which were not part of the merger; to pay legal costs and fees needed to pave the way to merger, and to forego sharing in television revenues until the current contract with CBS is completed. These other factors push the entrance fee upwards of $5.5 million, not counting the lost TV revenue or the territorial indemnity—estimated at $2 million—the Nets had to pay the New York Knicks.

A payment of $200,000 per club, the last part of the $3.2 million, is due June 1. The four clubs asked for a delay, but were turned down by the league's finance and advisory committees.

"Since then, some of the clubs have requested the league review their situations individually in hopes that the league might consider some modifications," O'Brien said. "These reviews will take place at the annual Board of Governors meeting in San Diego June 14-17."

Built into the June 1 deadline is a 30-day grace period, so the teams don't actually have to come up with any money until June 30.

Denver led the league with attendance of over 700,000 but had to cancel a proposed stock sale because of a shaky financial outlook. Indiana is up for sale, which is nothing new for that franchise. The Nets have always had money problems, or else they'd still have Julius Erving. And San Antonio, despite showing a profit for its first season in the NBA, has problems because of the commitments it made jointly with its other ex-ABA brethren.

"We have not had our head in the sand," O'Brien said. "We will make every effort to see that these problems are resolved.

"These problems are endemic to sports," added O'Brien. "Nothing is ever completely halcyon."

NCAA finals is wide open

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California's Vern Wolfe and UCLA's Jim Bush agree that the winner of the NCAA track and field championships will score in the mid 50s, and they also both believe five or six teams have a good chance at the title.

Although his Trojans won their fourth Pacific-8 title this past weekend, Wolfe seemed less than optimistic about USC's chances in the NCAA meet coming up June 2-4 at Champaign, Ill.

"Our guys will have to perform over their heads and have nobody break down," said Wolfe, whose Trojans are the defending champions.

"I figure 50 points will be the best we can do at the NCAA meet," Wolfe said Monday at the weekly track writers' meeting. "And I don't think 50 points will win it."

Wolfe said he thought Washington State, UCLA, BYU, Arizona State and UTEP all have an excellent chance to keep the Trojans from defending their championship, with San Jose State an outside contender.

Bush, whose Bruins finished third in the conference meet behind Washington State, mentioned the same teams when talking about the showdown in Champaign.

"I think everything will have to go right for the team that wins it," he added. "We have a good chance if Millard Hampton's okay."

Hampton, a threat in the 200 and a key cog in the Bruins' relay hopes, pulled up with a strained muscle in Saturday's conference competition.

The Trojans got outstanding performances from Clancy Edwards and Tom Andrews in winning the Pac-8 championship. Edwards won the 100 and 200 meters, the latter in a collegiate record 20.13, as well as anchoring the triumphant 400-meter relay team. Andrews won the 400 and the 400 intermediate hurdles.

The AAU Nationals, set June 9-11 at UCLA, will feature two of the top high jumpers in the world. Dwight Stones, who holds the world record of 7-7¼, was the first entrant, and prep sensation Gail Olson was the second. Olson, a 17-year-old junior from Sycamore (Ill.) High School, has cleared 7-4.

The women's collegiate nationals will be held Thursday through Saturday at UCLA, with Prairie View A&M favored to successfully defend its title. UCLA and Northridge State (Calif.) are expected to provide Prairie View its toughest competition.

UCLA's Evelyn Ashford, favored in the sprints, said she was shooting for seasonal bests in both events.

"I have trouble getting out of the blocks fast," said the 20-year-old UCLA Olympian. "But I'm working on it, and hope to run my best times of the season in both the 100 and 200."

Fingers, Tenace agree

'N.L. is better league'

NEW YORK (AP) — What's life like in the National League for a couple of expatriates from the American?

Rollie Fingers says the National League hitters are more aggressive. Gene Tenace says the same about National League pitchers.

And both agree, after moving to the San Diego Padres this season, that the National League appears to have more overall quality.

"There are more guys who can hit the ball out of the park here," says Fingers, the one time relief ace of the Oakland A's. "In the American League, the seventh and eighth hitters in the lineup are usually Punch-and-Judy hitters. But in the National, these guys at the bottom of the batting order have power.

"Also, the hitters are much more aggressive at the plate here. I'm a guy who throws strikes usually and I get a lot of strikeouts in the American League on guys looking at third strikes. But in the National League, they don't let good pitches go by. They're always swinging."

Fingers, one of the anchors of an Oakland team that won three world championships under the stormy leadership of Charles O. Finley, hasn't made any special adjustments coming to a new league. Both he and Oakland teammate Tenace landed lucrative free agent contracts this year with the Padres after years of discontent with the American League team.

"I'm not going to change my style now after nine years," Fingers said. "I still go with the same stuff-fast ball, sinker, slider."

The prevalence of artificial turf in the National League's modern stadiums, usually a bane to pitchers when the ball rockets through the infield, has not proved distracting to Fingers.

"They have Astroturf in Kansas City," said Fingers, whose trademark is a mammoth handlebar mustache. "I've pitched in Houston and Cincinnati so far and had pretty good luck in those places."

Fingers' statistics bear him out. Halfway through May, the tall, broad-shouldered right-hander had saved six games and recorded three victories for the Padres.

"It's been just great so far," Fingers said. "I tell you, I'm just happy to get away from Finley. It's like night and day, like the difference between the Pacific and Atlantic. I just had to get away from him. He was driving everyone crazy."

Tenace, another Finley alumnus, was not as vehemently vocal in his feelings about Oakland's irascible owner.

"I had a good time in Oakland for the most part," said Tenace a first baseman-catcher with good power. "I left a lot of friends there and made a lot of good investments."

He does concur with Fingers however, about NL quality.

"From what I've seen," said Tenace, still sporting a mustache from his famous Oakland playing days, "the National League is stronger than the American. The main difference is that every National team has at least two quality starters. The pitchers are better here. I won't be getting as many walks in this league as I did in the American. I agree with Rollie that the hitters are more aggressive.

"Also, I have been impressed with the consistency of the umpires in this league. And, I think the playing conditions are better with all the new parks."

Many people call all insects bugs. All bugs are insects, but not all insects are bugs.

True bugs have sharp beaks, which are used for piercing and sucking juices from plants or blood from animals.

Bugs have four wings or none at all. The wings of a bug fold flat over the back and are half-clear-and-half-cloudy-looking.

Some bugs have names that fit them very well. Stinkbugs give out an unpleasant odor for protection. The assassin bug kills other insects. The bedbug lives in houses and other living quarters.

This pest attacks man, as well as animals, and feeds on blood.

Not all bugs live on land. The water strider is perhaps the best-known of the water busgs. It is oten seen skating across the surface of a pond on long, spidery legs.

Others include the giant water bug and the water boatmen. Ladybugs, potato bugs and June bugs are not bugs at all. They are beetles with chewing mouthparts.

Mobsters eye gambling in Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Although casino gambling here is many months away, officials say mobsters, like legitimate businessmen and land speculators, are placing their bets early.

Voters approved the idea of casino gambling last November. If state and local officials work out the details of regulation in time, gambling could start by late next winter.

But even now, says FBI agent Louis Giovanetti, the FBI has "received indications that meetings have taken place for the purpose of dividing up the city — of who will take what."

Atlantic City was known as a wide-open city in the 1920s and 1930s, but business had been slow for mobsters and hotels alike in recent years. Now, Giovanetti said, anticipation of casino gambling is changing that.

The city has asked the FBI and other state and federal officials to screen applications for permits for such ancillary services as restaurants, bars, vending machine firms, laundry services and food suppliers. Federal and state authorities say those are organized crime's prime targets.

According to the FBI, the mob's piece of the pie is being divided between New York's Carlo Gambino family and reputed Philadelphia boss Angelo Bruno. "It's their territory," said Giovanetti, but he would not comment on specific reports that organized crime figures had begun making inroads.

He did say the FBI has expanded its local office.

Meanwhile, speculators and developers are jockeying for position to see who will get to set up the hotels and casino complexes.

Even though the state legislature is still working on the law that would set up regulation machinery, several major firms — and some speculators — have announced plans for large pieces of property, presuming they will get the approval of regulatory officials.

Resorts International, Inc., which owns four hotels and a casino in the Bahamas, has begun a $10 million renovation of the 1,000-room Haddon Hall hotel. The firm invested heavily in the campaign to persuade voters to approve gambling, and it also has hired architect John Portman to build another 1,000-room casino hotel nearby.

Playboy Enterprises Inc. has announced plans to invest $50 million in a 660-room casino hotel on the Boardwalk near Convention Hall. The firm plans to break ground this summer on their 100-by-341-foot site.

And Bally Manufacturing Corp. of Chicago, the world's largest maker of slot machines, plans to spend $50 million to convert the gracious, old Marlborough - Blenheim Hotel into a casino hotel complex.

Las Vegas hotelmen are noticeably absent. They are waiting for two reasons: their own state gaming regulations prevent casino owners from investing outside the state, and the New Jersey senate is still considering an Assembly-passed bill setting up a casino control commission.

Officials of the Las Vegas hotels — and some other hotel chains — say they would have to know such specifics as hours of operation and whether drinks may be served at tables before estimating how profitable gambling would be here.

Gov. Brendan Byrne is expected to sign the New Jersey legislation within a month, assuming the Senate finishes its work soon. That would allow casinos to open next winter.

Navy women would shun any sea duty

WASHINGTON (AP) — "The comfort - convenience - glamour - oriented young American woman" will shun naval service if she is required to go to sea, says a former top Navy woman officer.

Retired Capt. Robin L. Quigley says she believes "we would be hard put to attract more than a relative handful of our young women into the Navy if sea duty ... is made mandatory."

As for those already in uniform, Capt. Quigley says her experience as assistant chief of Naval personnel for women in 1971-1973 "tells me that there would be only minuscule numbers who would be prepared to accept continued service under such conditions."

The Navy recently began preparing legislation to guarantee Navy women equal treatment by changing the law that now bars women from sea duty. It did so after six Navy enlisted women and officers filed suit claiming the current restrictions infringe upon their constitutional rights.

But Capt. Quigley makes it clear she believes "the uncommodious, Spartan, unrelieved and physically demanding life" at sea may be tolerable to women of other societies — but not for American women.

"It seems to me most unlikely that the comfort-convenience - glamour - oriented young American woman would view such a life as her golden opportunity," Capt. Quigley writes in the Navy League's publication "Seapowers."

And yet, Capt. Quigley suggests that the principal of equality dictates that Navy women, like Navy men, should be subject to being ordered to sea rather than being given a choice in the matter.

This would require a change in the law that now bars assignment of women to Navy vessels other than hospital ships and transports. In effect, Navy women have been beached since 1975 when the last hospital ship was retired.

Defense Secretary Harold Brown said last week that the Pentagon leadership probably has been too restrictive in defining what constitutes the kind of combat-related assignments prohibited to women.

"We're looking at that (the law) again to see whether the definition and the policy can be modified so as to allow women to play a larger part across a broader spectrum of activities," Brown said.

But Capt. Quigley obviously has no regrets that she could not serve aboardship. She puts it this way:

"I enjoyed a long and successful career in the Navy, and the fact that I did not serve at sea did not in any way diminish my sense of having made a real contribution to my profession."

Government bank makes large profit

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government bank that loans money to other federal agencies is making a profit of about $63 million per year, according to a government audit.

The General Accounting Office said that the Federal Financing Bank "is accumulating profits far beyond its needs."

In auditing the bank's books for its first two years, the GAO found the bank:

—Made profits totaling $126 million "and is adding greatly to that figure each year."

—Borrowed money from the U.S. Treasury and then loaned it to agencies at higher interest rates.

—Added a service charge of one-eighth of 1 per cent. GAO said "it is not clear" what this charge is expected to cover.

—Invested its profits in treasury securities, earning $2 million in additional profits from this source.

The GAO noted that the bank "is unique in its operation and cannot be compared to any other financial body.

"The bank functions basically as a conduit for agency borrowing requests. The treasury borrows the funds needed by the agencies from the public and loans the funds to the bank which, in turn, loans them to the agencies," the auditors said.

The GAO said the bank's customer agencies are happy because they would pay higher interest rates on the commercial market.

The auditors sent questionnaires to agencies that borrow from the bank and all 14 that responded expressed satisfaction.

In at least one case, the bank appears to have kept an agency from insolvency.

Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailar told a Senate committee last year that the deficit-prone Postal Service would be insolvent within a year without loans from the bank.

GAO recommended that the bank turn back its profits to the treasury in the form of "dividends." It also recommended that the bank discontinue the service charge.

"There is no need for the bank to retain accumulated profits. The bank's administrative expenses are relatively minor and can be covered by yearly income. The bank as it currently operates has no contingencies for which it must provide," the auditors said.

The bank, in comments included in the GAO report, agreed that "profits in excess of needs should probably be transferred to the general fund of the treasury."

But the bank disagreed with the recommendation to eliminate the service charge, saying a contingency fund is needed because of "marketing risks incurred by the treasury."

International

The automobile business is taking on a distinctly international flavor, the Conference Board points out. One of the most popular small cars sold here, for instance, is designed in Detroit but its motor is made in Germany, its transmission in Great Britain and its electrical system in Canada. The suppliers of these components are all subsidiaries of the U.S. company.

Governor candidate is seeking a No.2

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Interested in a $36,000-a-year job requiring no prior experience and providing a good chance of advancement?

Contact Dale Parker, a candidate for governor who is advertising in newspapers for a running mate.

Parker, an independent who became the sixth person to enter the 1978 election contest, admitted his method of choosing a No. 2 for his ticket was different.

"It's a novel approach, but newspaper ads are used to fill all kinds of highly technical jobs, why not the lieutenant governor's position as well?" asked Parker, 51, who is a retired aerospace worker living in Orlando.

So far, he has had no response to Wednesday's ads.

Sears highway passenger tire warranty

Full warranty during first 25% of usable treadlife

If the tire fails apparently due to a defect in material or workmanship during the first 25% of the original usable tread (original tread less 2/32"), Sears will replace the tire, free of charge, or refund the purchase price.

Limited warranty

Tire failure. If the tire fails apparently due to a defect in material or workmanship after 25% of the tread is worn, and for the remaining 75% of the original usable tread, Sears will replace the tire or give you a refund, charging you only the proportion of the current price plus Federal Excise Tax that represents the portion of the usable tread used.

Tread wearout. If the tread wears out (2/32" or less remaining) before you receive the miles specified, Sears will, at its option, either replace the tire or give a refund, charging in either case the proportion of the current price plus Federal Excise Tax that represents the ratio of miles of usage actually received to the miles specified. This does not apply to wearout caused by improper inflation, misalignment, or failure to use and maintain the tire as recommended.

To obtain warranty service, simply return the tire to the nearest Sears store throughout the United States.
